Washington — The Ford administration has decided against extending diplomatic recognition to the Transkei, when the South African "homeland" of 3 million persons receives its official independence next Tuesday, a high State Department official said Thursday. The decision, which was divulged to The New York Times, was expected since no foreign government has yet recognized the controversial new nation, created by South African authorities as part of their plan to set up nine "independent" homelands, or Bantustans, carved from old tribal domains.

Shutoff of 36 reactors urged

Washington (UPI) — A reactor engineer who is quitting the Nuclear Regulatory Commission charged Thursday the government is letting more than half the nation's nuclear power plants operate with a potential for a catastrophic accident.

Ronald M. Fluegge called for immediate shutdown of 36 nuclear power reactors that use pressurized water cooling systems until steps are taken to eliminate the possibility they might be inadvertently overpressurized.

Benard C. Rusche, director of the NRC's Office of Nuclear Power Regulation, acknowledged some reactors had been overpressurized while starting up, but said there are wide margins of safety and the incidents have not warranted halting the reactions.

"I see no basis, when I consider the seriousness or the gravity of the situation, to suggest that these reactors need to be shut down," Rusche said at a news conference held in response to one earlier in the day by Fluegge.

Rusche said the reactors would be modified within a year to prevent such overpressurization.

Fluegge, 27, said at this news conference sponsored by the Union of Concerned Scientists, a group critical of the nuclear power industry, that there have been 29 occurrences of overpressurization since 1969 in 16 power reactors.

"Without prompt corrective action, it is inevitable, given a frequency of inadvertent overpressurization incidents, that a catastrophic vessel rupture will occur," he said.

The massive steel pressure vessels house the reactors' nuclear fuel. Fluegge said a rupture in a vessel, which has never occurred, could set the stage for a large scale release of radioactive materials.

He charged the NRC "is jeopardizing the lives of tens of thousands of people who live in the vicinity of each operating pressurized water reactor."

Saul Levine, director of the Office of Nuclear Regulatory Research, said at Rusche's conference that pressure vessels with deliberate large flaws cut into their six-inch steel walls have withstood pressures 2½ times as great as the worst cases of overpressurization.

There are now 62 licensed nuclear power plants in the United States with the capability of producing 8.5% of the country's electricity.

Mayor buys boots for Russia trip

By Gordon Winters
Star Staff Writer

On occasion Mayor Helen Boosalis can be seen padding around her office and nearby rooms in stocking feet.

But she doesn't see much chance she'll be indulging in that habit from Nov. 9 to 20.

During those 11 days she'll be in the Soviet Union with three other U.S. mayors, representing the U.S. Conference of Mayors in an exchange program between the two powers.

Planning for frigid temperatures, she has already added a pair of furry, comfortable boots to her wardrobe.

The mayor has never visited Russia before. In fact, she said Thursday, "I've never been across the water before."

Rather than seeing famous landmarks, Mrs. Boosalis said she is looking forward to meeting Russian people to "see what they're like."

The four mayors will be accompanied by interpreters in the exchange program set up in 1973 in a conference between Soviet General Secretary Leonid I. Brezhnev and former President Richard Nixon.

With Mayor Boosalis will be Mayor James H. McGee of Dayton, Ohio, Mayor David H. Rodgers of Spokane, Wash., and Mayor William H. McNichols Jr. of Denver.

Mrs. Boosalis said she is not sure why she was selected for the trip, but admitted, "I suspect being a woman had something to do with it."

The four American mayors will undergo a day-long briefing in the State Department in Washington, D.C., before flying to Moscow, Mrs. Boosalis said.

She insisted the visit will be a "working tour." She noted that no spouses are traveling with the mayors in the exchange program.

During the stay the mayors will be guests of the Russians. The State Department is furnishing transportation to and from the Soviet Union.

The mayor said she is looking forward to meeting Soviet mayors and seeing how housing, transportation and waste disposal are handled in that country.

"I think it's really a good idea to exchange people to foster better understanding," she said.

Mayors from Soviet cities visited cities in the United States last year.

Ed coordination outline approved

By John Barrette
Associated Press

The Unicameral committee studying coordination of higher education voted 5-1 Thursday to pursue a legislative solution recommended by its chairman.

Despite some opposition, a legislative effort over at least the next 15 months was the direction chosen in a tentative outline provided in a memorandum by Waverly Sen. Jerome Warner.

"This proposal for legislative coordination assumes that the LR36 Interim Study Committee still wishes to pursue some type of regulatory coordination of postsecondary education," Warner wrote in a cover letter to his colleagues.

The action put the interim committee, reluctantly in some cases, on record as favoring legislative action rather than an independent board or executive branch board.

The memo called for: —Legislation which would spell out redefined roles and missions of the state's public universities and colleges through a special but temporary Unicameral committee. The bill's statement of intent would include specifics of coordination and identify tools and methods to achieve it.

—The special committee would introduce by March 1, 1976, a resolution providing guidelines and constraints "within which institutional role and mission statements will be redefined."

Among the things that could be included in the legislation are strengthening of the budgetary process, use of a "resource allocation model," a moratorium on new programs and construction, and full disclosure requirements to secure sufficient information.

Warner said if the legislative method he outlined does not result in the coordination and elimination of duplication sought, the Unicameral could later switch to an independent or executive branch board.

However, he said that probably would require a constitutional amendment, which means voter approval in an election, which could be done in 1978 if necessary.

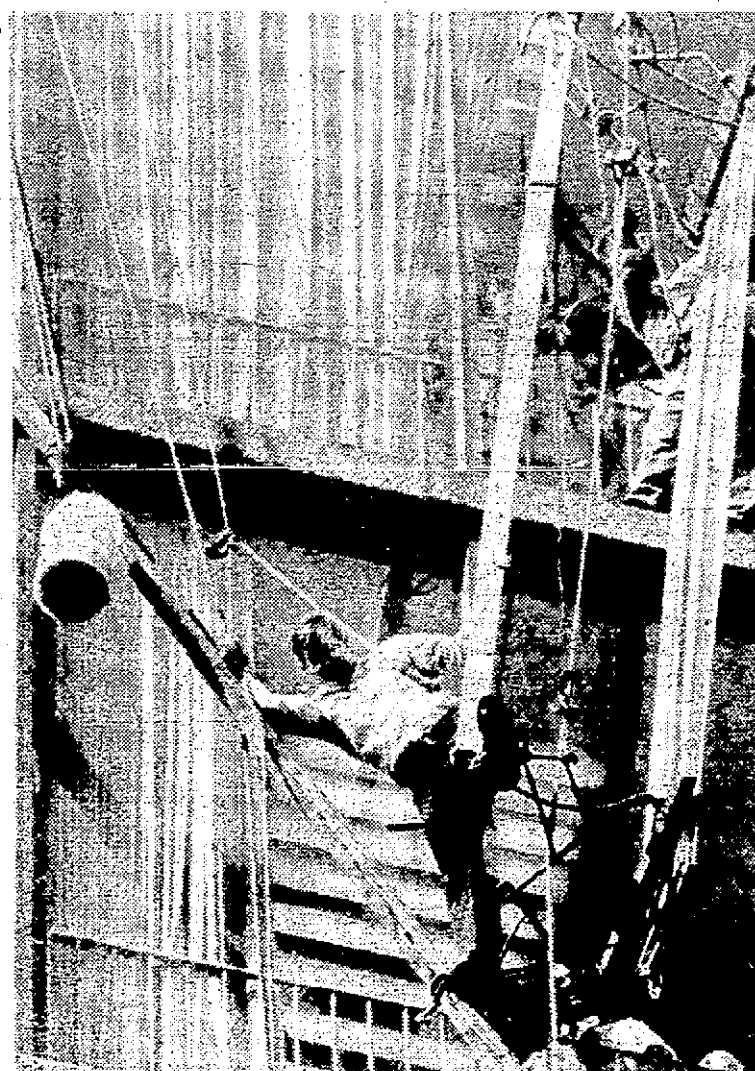

An initial 4-2 vote stalled the proposal for some minutes because five votes are required for committee action under Warner's ruling.

However, some language in the memo was softened at the suggestion of Columbus Sen. Donald Dworak, who wanted permissive rather than mandatory language in one section of the recommendation to the full Legislature.

Voting for the final draft of the memo were Warner, Dworak, Bellevue Sen. Frank Lewis, South Sioux City Sen. Robert Murphy and Omaha Sen. John Savage.

Omaha Sen. Larry Stoney was the only dissenter, saying no other Legislature attempts to provide such coordination, by itself.

He asked why Nebraska legislators have the "audacity" to think the Unicameral can provide it, sparking a reply from Lewis that it was the same type of audacity that led to a nonpartisan Unicameral in the state.

Joyo Theater closes; 64-year run is over

By Bob Reeves
Star Staff Writer

If you would like to buy a neighborhood movie theater that's been an institution in the Lincoln area since 1912, now's your chance.

The Joyo Theater, 6102 Havelock, dimmed its projector for the last time under its present ownership at 9:30 p.m. Thursday.

The "Next Attraction" billboard out front was empty. An audience of about 20 persons shuffled out under a dark marquee advertising, "Hawmps," a comedy in the Joyo's tradition of family fare.

Jack Irons, a 21-year-old movie enthusiast who has managed the theater for the past two years, talked about the passing of an important part of his life.

Irons was born and grew up in Havelock. "There was never a weekend I didn't go to the Joyo," he said. When he got old enough, he got a job there.

He remembers many times waiting through a line of kids a block long to get in. But times have changed.

The theater is owned by Phil McDermitt, an Omaha businessman who was not willing to continue losing money.

Irons was running the theater with the volunteer help of his two sisters, two brothers and his parents.

The everyday tickets price was $1.50 for adults, 75c for children — about half what other theaters are charging.

If Irons could have swung the deal, he had some ambitious ideas. He wanted to remodel the theater himself, so it would once again be an attractive place for a guy to take a date.

He would have expanded beyond the "Walt Disney" format, appealing to late teens and patrons aged 20 to 30, who make up the bulk of today's movie market.

Midnight movies once a week. More adult flicks. Wednesday matinees, discounted on a season pass. Special rates for senior citizens. Free movies at Christmas.

These were some of his ideas. "I'd rather see a lot of people happy than make a lot of money," he said. "I don't want Havelock to die — I want it to grow," he added.

Havelock is not dying, but there will be another empty building on Havelock Ave. this winter if nobody reopens the theater.

State asking tech colleges for answers

Associated Press

The budget division of the Department of Administrative Services returned the $15 million state support request of the Technical Community Colleges on Thursday, seeking more detailed spending guide data.

In a letter to Dr. Marn M. Harris, president of Metro Tech and chairman of the area boards Council of Presidents, budget division chief John Jacobson listed nine specific omissions from budget data that his analysts sought.

"We are therefore returning your budget letter and its attachments to you as chairman of the Council of Presidents, and we shall await a budget prepared in accordance with the requirements of the budget division without further request," Jacobson wrote.

The budget division analyzes the data and helps Gov. J. James Exon prepare state spending guide recommendations for submission to the Unicameral next year.

The tech schools, two year vocational training institutions serving six areas in the state, submitted their budget request last Friday and cited their local nature as the reason for not complying with the budget division guidelines.

The budget division wants uniform procedures for higher education institutions around the state in an effort to provide accurate decision-making information and set up accounting and audit methods for later use.

The tech schools, however, cite the 1975 law making the tech school areas local in nature to deal with a constitutional ban on levying property taxes for state purposes. The tech schools are funding partially from local property tax revenue and partly by the state legislature.

Budget division personnel cite the $13 million fiscal year appropriation level and the $15 million request as justification for their guidelines.

Included in the list of missing data sought were enrollment histories and projections; tuition rate schedules; student financial aid information; institutional public service activities; student fee schedules; revenue history and projections; full expenditure data; total budgets in the format sought; and employee numbers.

"If we understand your letter correctly," Jacobson wrote, "the technical community colleges do not wish to disclose complete and meaningful information to state level offices such as the budget division, whose staff is in a position to do thorough evaluations of budget requests, present alternatives and make recommendations to the governor and the legislature."

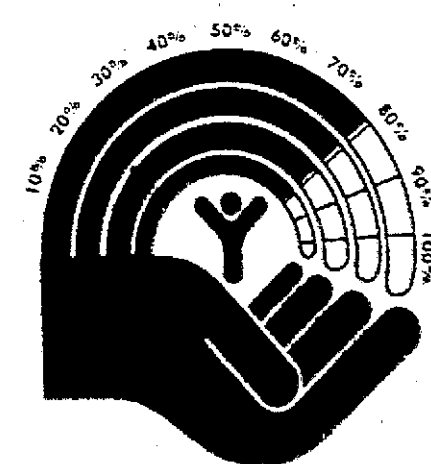

Hua replaces Chairman Mao

Tokyo (AP) — Peking's official radio confirmed Friday that Hua Kuo-feng is the new Chinese Communist Party chairman — replacing the late Mao Tse-tung — and said the party's central committee had crushed a "conspiratorial clique," including Mao's widow, who had plotted against Hua.

Hsinhua news agency said the party central committee headed by Hua "adopted resolute and decisive measures to crush the counterrevolutionary conspiratorial clique and liquidated a bane inside the party."

"A plot by four leaders to rob the party and state leadership" was destroyed, the broadcast said. It identified the four as Mao's widow, Chiang Ching, and three other top leftists — Vice Premier Chang Chun-chiao, party vice chairman Wang Hung-wen and Politburo member Yao Wen-yuan.

Candidates poke fun

Associated Press
Jimmy Carter and President Ford poked fun at each other and at themselves as they spoke to the same group in New York on Thursday night, but they managed to avoid having to hear each other's jokes.

Ford spoke first at the annual Al Smith dinner in New York City and he managed to leave the flower-strewn ballroom about 20 minutes before Carter arrived to give his speech.

Both candidates flew to New York especially for the dinner.

Earlier in the day, Carter had complained that his morals were impugned in advertising approved by President Ford. And Ford courted senior citizens and East Europeans.

The Democrat, who is running against the bureaucrats in Washington, and the Republican, whose campaign is pegged to doing his job as president, returned to their favorite symbolic platforms.

Ford was in the White House Rose Garden wearing a dark blue vested suit. Carter visited his peanut warehouse in Plains, Ga., wearing a blue work shirt and jeans.

Both candidates made light speeches with political overtones in their appearances at the annual Al Smith dinner, which honors the 1928 Democratic presidential nominee who lost to Herbert Hoover.

In his speech, Ford said the Williamsburg debate will be the most difficult of the series of three.

"Gov. Carter is going to answer his questions, and I'm going to question my answers," Ford said. He was referring to his campaign charge that Carter is not specific on issues and to his own boner in declaring during the last debate that the Soviets do not dominate Eastern Europe.

The Democratic nominee started his speech by saying, "It's a great pleasure to be here in . . ." He paused in what was an obvious joke about Ford's propensity for forgetting what city he is in, then said, "New York."

During another of his now-frequent warehouse inspections at his home base in Plains, Ga., Carter told reporters Thursday morning that a Ford campaign committee advertisement placed in 350 newspapers in 22 states tries "to insinuate that I'm a special case and have low morals simply because I granted an interview with Playboy."

"Mr. Ford made the decision (to place the ads), and I personally don't believe that it will help him any . . . I think that Mr. Ford knows that Playboy magazine has interviewed many people: his own secretary of the Treasury, Mr. (William) Simon; Walter Cronkite; William Buckley . . . Albert Schweitzer; Arnold Toynbee; California Gov. Jerry Brown, and dozens of others in addition to myself."

"I think it's a highly misleading sort of advertising campaign," Carter said.

Ford ad revised

Associated Press
President Ford's campaign committee has revised an ad after receiving a protest from a black leader pictured in it.

The ad said Ford had worked quietly and effectively on behalf of blacks and has the support of many black leaders.

Among those pictured in the ad at a meeting with Ford was Urban League executive director Vernon Jordan, who protested that the league has never endorsed candidates. (Jordan wants an apology. Story on Page 15.)

The Ford committee said the ad would not use Jordan's picture in the future.

Average wage earner loses purchasing power

Washington (AP) — Inflation eased slightly in September but the average wage earner continued to lose ground as purchasing power declined for the second consecutive month.

President Ford and his Democratic challenger, Jimmy Carter, were quick to offer different interpretations of Thursday's reports by the Labor Department, the final major economic statistics to be released before the election.

Retail prices rose 0.4% last month, compared with increases of 0.5% in each of the preceding three months.

Another report, on purchasing power, was less favorable. It showed the buying power of the average workers' paycheck declined 0.5%.

In September, price increases were generally smaller across the board than in recent months.

Grocery prices declined 0.1%, the first drop since March. Non-food commodities rose 0.40% following increases of about 0.6% since May, while the cost of services increased 0.5%, a rate slightly smaller than during the summer months.

Presidential press secretary Ron Nessen said the White House was pleased with the consumer price figures because "this is further evidence of a reduction in inflation."

Nessen noted the September increase was the smallest monthly rise since April. He brushed off questions about earnings, saying they were based "I'm told on a very slight reduction in the work week."

Carter accused the administration of making workers the hostages in the fight against inflation.

"For the second month in a row, the paycheck of the average worker has declined," he said in a statement issued by his campaign headquarters. "The Republicans claim the economy is just in a pause but the average worker is actually losing ground every month."

Carter noted that real weekly earnings are now 2% below what they were when Ford took office and called that "the bottom line of the disastrous economic policies" followed by the Republican administration.

September's 0.4% increase in the consumer price index, adjusted to remove seasonal influences, would add up to a compound annual rate of 4.9%. That is near the 5 to 6% rate most economists regard as the underlying rate of inflation in the economy.

Ford has cited progress in reducing inflation as resulting from his economic policies.

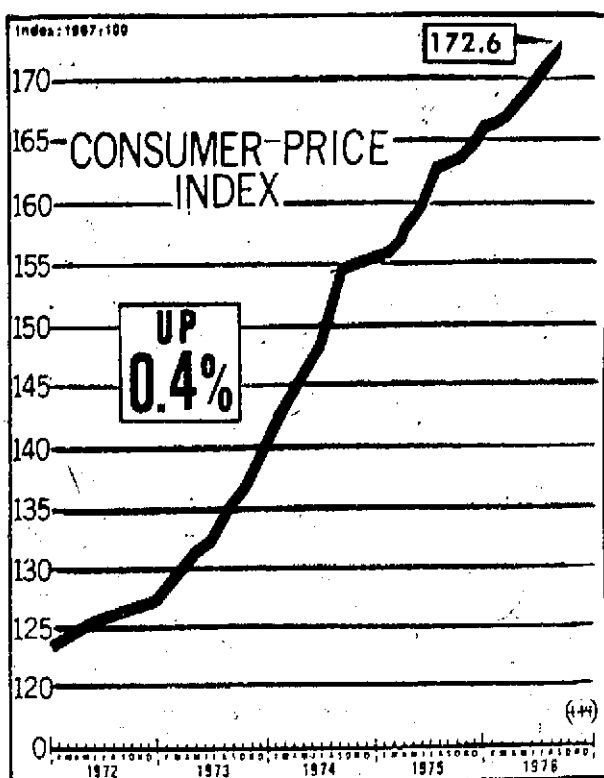

Consumer prices rose 12.2% in 1974 and 7% in 1975. This year, inflation picked up from an annual rate of 2.9% in the first quarter to 6.1% in the second and topped to 5.8% in the third quarter.

But the rate is high for Americans accustomed to inflation rates averaging about 2% a year during much of the post-World War II period.

The consumer price index stood at 172.6 in September, meaning a market basket of goods and services that sold for $100 in 1967 now costs $172.60.

Over the year, prices have risen 5.5%.

Among food prices, meats,

Cost of living rises 0.4% in September.

sugar and cereal products declined; fresh vegetables, dairy products and coffee were up.

The earnings report showed that the average rank-and-file production workers' buying power, meaning his after-tax pay, reduced by inflation, went down 0.5% in September following a 0.2% decline in August.

Over the year, buying power was down 0.8%.

Mistrial declared in Phoenix

Phoenix, Ariz. (AP) — A mistrial was declared Thursday in the trial of John Harvey Adamson, accused of murdering newsman Don Bolles. The judge said pretrial publicity made it impossible to select a fair jury now.

Superior Court Judge Frederic Heineman made the announcement at an emergency hearing.

In rapid sequence, a defense attorney moved for a mistrial, a prosecutor joined in the motion and the judge declared there had been "sufficient prejudicial publicity in recent weeks to warrant a mistrial."

"A mistrial is ordered," said the judge. He said the trial should be rescheduled no later than Dec. 20, when a new panel of prospective jurors would be called.

However, he refused a motion to transfer the trial to another county.

Adamson, a 32-year-old greyhound breeder, is the sole defendant indicted so far in the gangland-style bombing murder of Bolles, a prominent investigative reporter.

Bolles, who was 47, was a specialist in exposing land frauds and other forms of white-collar crime. He was fatally maimed when dynamite tore through the floor of his car June 2.

The reporter battled for life for 11 days, and the case attracted national attention. Before he died on June 13, both legs and an arm were amputated.

Wearing dark glasses and a sport shirt, Adamson sat impassive at the counsel table Thursday as his attorney, William Friedl, offered the written mistrial motion.

Asst. Atty. Gen. William Schafer, the prosecutor, then rose and said, "Our response is in general agreement. There should be a mistrial and discharge of this jury panel as of this time."

He noted that attorneys had been experiencing difficulty in obtaining fair and impartial jurors during three days of closed-door jury questioning.

"If this case is tried now, we could well have a reversal," he said.

However, he said the prosecutor's office did not agree with the reasons given by the defense — which included allegedly prejudicial remarks by Maricopa County Atty. Donald Harris.

The judge, in his ruling, said he was not blaming Harris for the mistrial. "I do not believe ... Mr. Harris has acted in bad faith," Heineman said.

The dispute over Harris' comments and other publicity stopped jury selection late Wednesday. Harris had told reporters Tuesday that "five or six or perhaps seven" persons other than Adamson might soon be indicted for the Bolles killing.

Harris also discussed the possibility of multiple conspirators in the case during a recent segment of the "60 minutes" TV news show. A tape of that show reportedly was played for the judge during the in-chambers hearing.

Heineman has denied previous requests for a change of venue, saying other counties had been equally saturated with publicity in the Bolles case.

Sources said the secret questioning of prospective jurors this week confirmed that most residents followed the case closely and knew all allegations about Adamson's involvement.

Bolles' newspaper, The Arizona Republic, has published a story on the case every day since the bombing and has offered a $25,000 reward for information leading to Bolles' killers.

Sears agrees not to bait and switch

(c) Washington Star

Washington — Sears, Roebuck & Co. has signed a consent order with the Federal Trade Commission which prohibits Sears from using bait-and-switch advertising tactics to sell major home appliances.

The FTC in 1974 accused Sears, the nation's largest retailer, of luring buyers into its stores by advertising low-priced items and then trying to sell higher-priced merchandise.

Sears originally said it would fight the charges but began negotiating a consent order earlier this year. The order, signed March 3 but not accepted by the commissioners until this week, requires Sears to make only bona fide sales offers for its major home appliances, have sufficient quantities of advertised appliances available and to state in advertisements that the items are "readily available for sale."

During FTC hearings on the charges against Sears, there was testimony that store salesmen tried to talk customers out of buying advertised appliances by contending they were out of stock, that they were defective or inferior to higher-priced models.

The FTC order would prohibit Sears from "disparaging advertised appliances in any manner, using demonstrations or displays which make them appear defective and making misleading and deceptive comparisons between an advertised appliance and others in the same product line."

Sears chairman, Arthur M. Wood, issued a statement saying, "The consent order reflects our long-standing company policy, and we will vigorously enforce it."

He said store managers were responsible for seeing that salesmen adhered to company policy and that they would "redouble" their vigilance.

"We are proud of Sears' reputation for fair dealing," Wood said.

"Every item in Sears line represents a value at the price offered and will be sold as such."

By signing the consent order, Sears did not admit that it has violated any law, but agreed not to engage in any such practices in the future.

On the ballot again

Among those proposed amendments to the state constitution which will appear on the ballot Nov. 2 are Amendment 4, providing for a further separation of the executive and legislative branches, and Amendment 8, providing for increased pay for senators.

Amendment 4 proposes the removal of the lieutenant governor as presiding officer of the Legislature. It also removes the requirement that the Speaker preside in the absence of the lieutenant governor and allows the Legislature to determine its own presiding officer.

Similar proposals were rejected by the voters in 1974 and in 1970, when voters approved the team election of governor and lieutenant governor.

That constitutional change made the lieutenant governor a full-time executive officer empowered to perform whatever duties the governor assigns.

The lieutenant governor is technically a full-time executive officer and yet he presides over the Legislature and casts a vote in case of ties. At present then, the office is neither fish nor fowl.

We believe the lieutenant governor belongs in the executive branch full-time where he can perform duties assigned him by the governor, as envisioned by the voters in 1970.

The Legislature should be free to pick a presiding officer on its own, and in the process, it may develop a stronger leadership structure which in turn could give it a greater degree of discipline.

With the lieutenant governor removed from the presiding officer's chair in the Unicameral chamber, there would also be less opportunity for political sniping between those two branches of government.

A vote FOR Amendment 4 is advised.

Amendment 8 would raise the pay of state senators from $400 to $675 per month.

The last time the legislators received a raise was in 1968. Several pay hike proposals since that time have been defeated at the polls.

In a time of increasing costs — and an increasing workload — senators have had to make do on the $400 monthly wage and little other compensation from the state. Expenses are reimbursed for legislative activities while the Unicameral is not in session, and senators are paid the actual expenses for one round trip home during the session. But that's it.

Nebraska senators are among the lowest paid in the nation.

The bargain basement wages Nebraskans pay their state representatives have discouraged many fine legislators from seeking re-election and have discouraged many potentially good lawmakers from even running for the office.

And for those who do serve, the pay is just plain unfair.

It does not seem to be asking too much for Nebraskans to authorize a raise in pay — after eight years — for state senators to a little more decent level. People in this state ordinarily are the type who would justly compensate someone for work done.

A vote FOR Amendment 8 is advised.

Under the rug

If the publication of John Dean's new book and the interviews which attended it were timed politically, as one might think, just as political, probably, are the decisions not to follow up on what Dean had to say.

The latest tidbit escaping from Mr. Dean's golden memory relates to Gerald Ford's sworn testimony at his vice presidential confirmation hearings that he did not talk to White House operatives about trying to head off the initial congressional investigation into Watergate.

Ford said he had talked to some Republican members of the House Banking Committee about blocking the committee's investigation, but had acted on his own and had not been in collusion with the White House.

Dean suggests that Ford lied at his confirmation hearings.

On the basis of Dean's allegations, and most certainly encouraged by Dean's excellent memory, Democratic members of Congress this month asked both the special prosecutor, Charles Ruff, and the Justice Department to investigate the possibility that Ford lied.

Ruff and Attorney General Edward Levi say an investigation is unwarranted by the evidence. The matter is closed — for the time being.

But should it be?

In 1972, the Nixon camp managed to keep the investigation of the Watergate scandals under the rug until after Nixon's landslide re-election.

There is something similarly disturbing about ignoring the charges that Ford possibly lied to the Senate.

In fact, the entire Nixon-Ford relationship continues to puzzle.

If the President has nothing to fear, he should be the first to insist that the special prosecutor investigate the record and clear his name.

Who's Erwin Rabhan?

PORTLAND, Ore. — "Nobody ever made a report of contributors," said the candidate who never had to us about his 1970 campaign fat-cat list, "and we didn't maintain those records."

Slowly, begrudgingly, over an eight-month period, Jimmy Carter has given ground on "the list that never was." Contrary to the Carter statement, a card-file of contributors was indeed maintained, appearing miraculously in a campaign worker's basement a few months ago, and not released until this week.

Small wonder that Carter "stonewalled," to use a favored phrase, even granting the continuing coverup implicit in the accompanying statement that "we suspect a few omissions," the list raises questions about the ethical standard of Carter fund-raising.

For example, after Carter had beaten Carl Sanders for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination in 1970, Carter fund-raisers took in $11,599 from road-building contractors who expected to continue doing business with the state. These contributions were gratefully accepted after the Carter primary victory, which in Georgia is as good as election.

Large contributions to Carter paid off in terms of political appointments. Since the list was then secret, Carter could feel comfortable in appointing Philip Alston, who chipped in over $7,000, to the State Board of Regents; Joel Fryer, who gave $1,175 and was appointed superior court judge; Conley Ingram and William Gunter, who gave $770 and $600 and wound up as Carter appointees on the Georgia Supreme Court.

The most blatant purchase of power involved campaign chairman David Gambrell, a young lawyer who, with his family, contributed $5,000 to the Carter campaign, and wound up appointed by Carter as Democratic state chairman for a few months, and then U.S. senator to fill an unexpired term.

Gambrell is remembered in Washington as "the senator from Lockheed" for his lobbying in behalf of the $250 million loan guarantee to that ailing Georgia company; his appointment by Gov. Carter was so patently a political payoff that Georgia Democrats ousted him from the Democratic nomination for senator the next year.

Carter staffers airily reject any cause-and-effect relationship between contributions and patronage: just 11 curious coincidences, that's all. As might be expected, moralists who were fiercest about the corrupt "sale" of ambassadorships a few years back shyly turn their glances away from the tangible Carter gratitude.

One wonders, too, about the lack of interest on the part of election reformers at the apparent discrepancy of $200,000 between Carter 1970 expenditures and contributions. Was that small change put away for a rainy day? Was it all spent in some unaccounted-for way? When a candidate who prides himself on his efficiency in management lets his bookkeeping get that sloppy, there is usually a reason for it.

One of the most intriguing tidbits cast up by the forced publication of the partial Carter list involves a man named Erwin D. Rabhan, of Savannah, who owns a firm that controls nursing homes and food processing plants in Georgia.

Rabhan's relationships with Jimmy Carter were evidently more than that of the usual contributor. A private pilot, he flew Carter around Georgia frequently, presumably at his own expense. Every month or so for nearly two years, he gave Carter $200 or $300, for a listed total of $8,600, and probably more.

That's a real friend. Considering the sordid nature of the payments, one might even conclude that Carter was on Rabhan's monthly payroll.

What makes that significant is this paragraph in a piece by New York Times investigative reporter Nicholas Horrocks:

"While Mr. Carter was governor, Mr. Rabhan's concern came under federal investigation in connection with Federal Housing Administration violations, senior law-enforcement sources have said. The FBI has sought to question Rabhan, and he is reported living outside the country."

Housing officials in Washington say that Rabhan's varied interests include the Regency Nursing Inn, in St. Louis; the Whiggam Nursing and Convalescent Center, Midway Nursing Home, Geriatric Development Corp., and Convacare, Inc., all in Georgia; and a group of nursing homes in Jackson, Miss. Their file on Rabhan has been forwarded to the Justice Department.

Carter's contributor-pilot may be an honest man with a genuine wanderlust under unfair investigation. Calls to his relatives in Savannah are met with, "Haven't seen him in years," and, "We have no information." The Federal Aviation Agency, which issued him License No. 130735, lists his last known address as Swainsboro, Ga., and says his last physical was taken in June, 1973. Put the shoe on the other foot. If Ford had been the recipient of that kind of monthly stipend from, say, nursing home operator Bernard Bergman, and then his patron had skipped the country, would there not be legitimate demands for a full-scale investigation of their relationship by the special prosecutor?

Edwin D. Rabhan, where are you? Come forward, and tell us what you got or expected to get for your investment in Jimmy Carter.

Ms. Walters, stay 'way from my door!

Jim Bishop

I do not think that Barbara Walters is overpaid. There is a chuckle in the thought that a female is getting more money than her male conferees. For a little while, she will hike the ABC news ratings by a few digits. Then the people will revert to their favorite sources.

I knew her old man. Lou Walters was a producer of cut-rate Ziegfeld shows. His formula was to open with a fast dance number with a lot of long legs hiking up and down in the front line, toss a magician into the middle, a baggy pants comic, and close with a grand staircase and sedate beauties in spangled gowns.

His daughter is, in my estimation, a tough tomato. This is not a pejorative; the job of the interviewer is to be merciless in keeping the interviewee on the track, and Barbara Walters can do that.

And yet I would have counted myself lucky if she had chosen to interview me every time I wrote a book. Fortunately for both of us, she did not do it. When I'm aroused I freeze my cast-iron kisser and become sarcastic.

REASONER AND WALTERS... he's the only one who has to listen to her...

The average editor of a big-town newspaper seldom earns more than one-twentieth of what Ms. Walters gets. He works long hours listening to subordinate editors tell him what stories are breaking, who is covering, whether photographs will accompany the story, where the makeup editor plans to spot each story, and at what length.

I know of none who would trade places with any of the television stars. This is not a form of derision; it is an intimate assessment of one's talent and a consciousness of where the heart lies.

Now and then authors dip a tepid toe into television, but none of them frightens the real stars. They remain awhile, a foot in each of two canoes, and they drown. Television has an inordinate respect for writers — largely unwarranted — and equates good writing with good speech.

The chasm between the two is unbridgeable. No one can write a better fight story, for example, than Norman Mailer. But who can match Don Dunphy for making a dull fight sound exciting on the airwaves? Nobody.

I marvel at the daily production of good talk shows such as Mike Douglas, Merv Griffin, Today and Johnny Carson. Suppose each one was reduced to words on sheets of paper. Would you read it? Neither would I.

Somewhere there may be a woman who can recite news items better than Barbara Walters, or conduct interviews in a more revealing manner. I doubt it. To reach the top in any area of endeavor is a long arduous climb. Ms. Walters has made it.

I hope it keeps her out of my field... Copyright, 1976, by King Features Syndicate

Raunchy rhetoric could lose votes

Kingsbury Smith

WASHINGTON — If tonight's final debate between President Ford and Jimmy Carter degenerates into the kind of personal slugging match that has marked their recent campaign strategy, it may cost both of them votes.

The strident rhetoric to which the two presidential rivals have resorted on the last lap of the campaign could swell the ranks of the many voters who are expected to stay home on Nov. 2.

Polls indicate the public generally, and especially the independent voters who may hold the balance of power, are far from favorably impressed by the exchange of personal attacks between the President and the Democratic challenger.

By debasing the presidential contest from the level of statesmanship to that of a political dogfight, the harsh accusations the President and Carter have been trading will, if continued, surely intensify the disappointment and disillusionment the Presidential campaign already appears to have caused among a majority of the electorate.

This could fulfill the prophecy of some research estimates that for the first time in 50 years, less than half of the 150 million eligible voters will go to the polls on election day. In the 1972 presidential election more than 60 million eligibles stayed home. Only 55% of those who could vote did so.

It is hardly likely that the efforts of the President and Carter to denigrate one another's character will encourage those already doubtful about voting to change their minds.

It is more likely to heighten the crisis of confidence in national leaders that, according to the polls, is widespread and responsible for the general apathy in the 1976 campaign.

Carter, who had the reputation in his Georgia gubernatorial campaigns of going for the jugular of political opponents, was the first to start the personal attacks in the post-nomination contest with the President.

He launched a direct offensive against the President after the latter had begun to narrow the poll gap between them. In a Boston speech on Sept. 30, he called President Ford "even worse" than Nixon. He repeated this damning remark ten days later in Cleveland.

Following the second debate with the President, Carter suggested that Mr. Ford had been "brain-washed" during his trip to Poland in 1975. This was a mocking "explanation" of the President's statement during the debate that he did not think Poland was under Soviet domination.

When it became known that Ford's finances as a congressman were under investigation, Carter, using court language applied to someone charged with a crime, called on the President to "tell the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth."

Last week the Georgia contender accused the President of willfully "telling, the American people things that are not true" about Carter's tax and spending plans.

Urged by some of his Republican supporters to get tough with the Democratic presidential nominee in reply to the latter's personal attacks on him, the President began to impugn the trustworthiness of Carter. Calling attention to the Georgian's denial that he had said he would reduce the defense budget by $15 billion, President Ford accused him in effect, of saying he never said things that he had said, and then asking,

"Can you trust him?"

The President also accused Carter of "slandering the good name of the United States." This was in reference to Carter's statement in the foreign affairs debate that "Our country is not strong any more; we're not respected any more." He further charged that Carter engaged in "deceit and distortion."

In his Midwest trip last week, President Ford said Carter would "say anything anywhere to be president of the United States," adding that "he waffles, he wanders, he wiggles and he waffles, and he shouldn't be president of the United States."

During the primary campaign early this year, Carter said the American people were affronted by bickering and backstabbing among politicians. President Ford, at this recent press conference in Washington, called for an elevation in the level of campaign rhetoric, saying the American people deserve "better" than what they have been getting in the Presidential campaign.

It remains to be seen whether he and Carter will bear that in mind during tonight's crucial confrontation.

Doctors not in business for their health

Health care

Lincoln, Neb.

Why are so many people opposed to a free market system? This question came to mind while reading Monday's "Column A" on the relative shortage of physicians in northeast Lincoln.

Rev. Jim Cooke of Lincoln notes the lack of physicians with astonishment, not for himself, of course, but for the elderly who must spend precious time and money for the chance to visit one. In his view, it should be "the obligation of existing hospitals (in the north part of town)." Duplication of facilities costs money but the only clue Cooke gives as to the source is "existing hospitals." This means that if these hospitals are forced to establish new facilities, it will be at the expense of the users of existing ones. Thus, medical bills like everything else will be up, without a corresponding improvement in treatment.

Rev. Cooke goes on to say: "(the hospitals) should be willing to deliver some kind of health care to all parts of the city and county, even if they can't make a profit at it. I know that can hurt, but when you are in the business of serving the public, you should do that before doing anything else."

A physician like the rest of us is not in business for his health. To force any man to work in a location not to his liking is a negation of the basic freedom of choice, and with such reasoning, one can see why fewer and fewer qualified doctors are coming out of our medical schools.

People who are genuinely concerned about the health care for the elderly shouldn't mind taking their time and money to help these people.

Profligate spending by Washington is a theme that hardened politicians feed the electorate to great advantage, but it is so broad that it means nothing because examples of a Proxmire and Hart have saved this nation billions upon billions of dollars.

One reason our grain market did relatively poorly in world trade was the fact that these lily-pure grain merchants were shorting the buyer by sending out light loads of inferior grain and it fell upon our Congress to tackle this problem and the farmers ought to be appreciative of the fact that it was the federal government and not the states that was best qualified to handle the situation and it was the error of leaving it to the states that caused it to go on for so long.

Carter and labor

Lincoln, Neb.

Carter's election could destroy our freedom. Let's face the facts of what his election could mean to our families.

Uncontrolled domination of this country by the "union hierarchy" could quickly bring us to a situation as desperate as present-day once free England. England, thus controlled, is rapidly disintegrating. Union workers now dominate all industry, and they themselves are now slaves of the union bosses.

Carter is fuzzy on many important issues, but after selling out to Meany, on assurance of financial and in-kind help, he feels assured of election. The fact that in so doing, he has sold out the people of this country is of small importance to him. Above all, he wants to be president.

As governor of Georgia, he supported the "right to work," the one strong safeguard for the free working man. But after meeting with Meany, he reversed himself 100% and guaranteed the union full support to defeat the "right to work." In addition, he has promised full support of the picketing bill, giving unions government sanction to stop construction work where and when they desire, to the direct loss to every American.

This is indeed a frightening situation, and irreversible, as unions once in control never give up, and a dictatorship could easily result.

Meaning of 'peace'

O'Neill, Neb.

October 24 marks the 31st anniversary of the founding of the United Nations. For many reasons, it should be proclaimed a day of shame.

The purpose of the United Nations was to maintain peace. To most people, the term "peace" includes freedom, but to the U.N. "peace" means the absence of resistance to communism. And for the past 31 years, the U.N. has worked to promote that kind of peace throughout the world. Since the U.N.'s founding, over a billion human beings have been enslaved by the communists and they have seized solidified control in over 16 countries.

When one considers the type of U.S. representation in the U.N., along with the U.S.S.R., Red China, and 141 other member nations, more than half of whom have fewer people than New York City, and most of whom are mere puppets of the communists, one realizes that the U.N. is not "our last best hope for peace." There has been no peace since the U.N. was created and there can be no peace from an organization when strategically entrenched within it is the most aggressive peace-destroying force the world has ever seen.

Let's get US out of the United Nations!

Slobs increasing

Lincoln, Neb.

As one of the slobs referred to in The Star's editorial of Oct. 12 concerning non-voting, I feel there is logic in not voting. The little tirade to get people out to vote is a good idea but the reasoning is very poor. The logic of the figures quoted is very explainable by simply looking at the reverse of the statements given.

Citizens feel that their one vote doesn't mean anything, and in reality it doesn't. Populace voting is nothing but a popularity contest, because the Electoral College already has our fate signed, sealed and delivered. How about those famous senators from Nebraska — Tweedle-Dee and Tweedle-Dum? They continually get elected, yet no one ever admits to voting for them.

I also feel that citizens have a right to be apathetic when it comes to voting. We are so fed up with politics and shady dealings that we just can't see voting for voting's sake.

Our representative, democratic form of government was mentioned as going down the drain. Well, is it down the drain? Remember Nixon and Watergate? Some of us do, even though the press and the politicians are trying to cover it up. Those $50,000-a-year sex maniacs in D.C. are not representative of me nor anyone whom I know.

So, what if no one goes to the polls? Remember President Ford? No one went to the polls for him, and he became president. And how about all those silly, yelling, screaming people at the convention? Were they really representing us?

Also mentioned was a contrast between Ford and Carter, yet The Star failed to state what it is. This is fine, because even they don't know where they stand. I really feel sorry for The Star if it sees a choice between Ford and Carter. If it is looking for a contrast, then here it is — Ford is tall and glum and Carter is short and toothy. But slobs don't look for contrast when they vote. We look for issues, platforms and backgrounds, and so far we haven't seen anything worth voting for.

But what I really question is that 60% mentioned who do vote, for they are the real slobs. They are voting only to be voting, just going through the motions. They have to be, for if they ever stopped to think about whom or what they were voting for, they would never pull the lever.

Have heart, fellow slobs. Our numbers are continually rising and soon the government will be forced into revamping itself, and then maybe elections will become relevant again. Or we will then find out what we are really about.

Delighted, skeptical Bellow completes U.S. Nobel sweep

Bellow holds copies of two of his books.

Stockholm, Sweden (AP) — Novelist Saul Bellow won the Nobel Prize for Literature on Thursday for his books portraying modern man as frightened and alienated but still striving "to find a foothold in a tottering world."

He was the seventh American to win the coveted award and completed an unprecedented sweep of the 1976 prizes by the United States.

Bellow, 61, had been prominently mentioned as a possible winner last year but the 1975 prize went to Italian poet Eugenio Montale.

Bellow, known for caustic comment about writers' awards, continued in the same vein, telling reporters at a Chicago news conference: "The child in me is delighted. The adult is skeptical."

He said the Nobel prize given his friend John Steinbeck in 1962 "made him wretched. I hope it isn't going to make me wretched."

Bellow is due in Stockholm Dec. 10 to collect his $160,000 prize money from Swedish King Karl XVI Gustaf.

Since last week, Americans have also won the 1976 Nobel Prizes in economics, physics, chemistry and medicine, also worth $160,000 each. The awards began in 1901 and are financed from the estate of the late Alfred B. Nobel, the Swedish inventor of dynamite. The Nobel Peace Prize will not be given this year.

Bellow said in a recent interview with a Swedish newspaper that "Nobel prizes are rarely good for Americans, at least not writers. Sinclair Lewis and John Steinbeck hardly had a sober time afterward. (Ernest) Hemingway quit writing."

Through the lips of mad poet Von Humboldt Fleisher in his novel, "Humboldt's Gift," Bellow knocked the Pulitzer Prize for fiction — which he later won for that very book. "The Pulitzer," Fleisher says, "is for the birds — for the pullets. It's just a dummy newspaper publicity award given by crooks and illiterates."

He also had harsh words for his own generation, declaring recently that "When turning 60, American writers usually turn into wise men sitting in some university cracking rustic maxims. Everybody cheers, nobody listens and then you are pushed out into eternity..."

Bellow's major novels are "Herzog," "Humboldt's Gift," "The Adventure of Augie March," "Henderson the Rain King" and "Mr. Sammler's Planet."

His latest book is the nonfiction "To Jerusalem and Back: A Personal Account," based on the journal Bellow kept on a 1975 visit to Israel.

Bellow's major works portray confused and frightened characters who in severe crises of identity and faith strive to find a meaning to life and death.

They "are all novels on the move and... are about a man without a foothold," said author and critic Karl Ragnar Gierow, permanent secretary and spokesman of the Swedish Academy. "But — and this is important — a man who keeps on trying to find a foothold during his wanderings in a tottering world, one who can never relinquish his faith that value of life depends on its dignity, not on its success, and that truth must triumph at last."

"That is the way of thinking in which Saul Bellow's antiheroes have their foundation and acquire their lasting stature," Gierow said.

In announcing Bellow's prize, the academy also cited him for "the human understanding and subtle analysis of contemporary culture that are combined in his work."

A Chicagoan since childhood, Bellow was born in Lachine, Quebec, outside Montreal, of Russian Jewish immigrant parents. He attended Tuley High School in Chicago and graduated from Northwestern University in 1937. His major was anthropology but his ambition from early youth was to be a writer.

Bellow has been on the faculty of the University of Chicago's English department since 1962. He has been married four times and has three sons.

His wife, Alexandra, a mathematics professor at Northwestern, said, "Personally, I don't think it could have happened to a better writer and nicer husband and I'm sure everyone who has intelligence and discrimination agrees."

Other American Nobel laureates in literature have been Lewis in 1930, Eugene O'Neill in 1936, Pearl Buck in 1938, William Faulkner in 1949, Hemingway in 1954 and Steinbeck in 1962.

The moderate Italian newspaper Il Giorno found political meaning in the U.S. sweep of all five prizes and said it reflected the change of government in Sweden that saw a 40-year socialist regime replaced by conservatives. The big Milan daily added wryly that Sweden was contributing to the U.S. bicentennial by "pouring prizes on that great country beyond the ocean."

Jorge Luis Borges, the Argentine writer mentioned in recent years as a contender for the Nobel literature prize, told a reporter in Buenos Aires he hasn't read Bellow's work and added, "Even his name was unknown to me until recently."

Thursday's award found wide approval in Swedish literary circles, however. The prestigious Paris newspaper, Le Monde, devoted a half page of its literary section Thursday to Bellow. In an era of downgrading human values, it said, "Saul Bellow has the courage to denounce certain oversimplification (such as the justification of terrorism)... He dares to proclaim that love, peace, goodness, usefulness and harmony exist in human life."

until recently."

One of the first of Bellow's contemporaries to congratulate him was novelist Norman Mailer, who said through his secretary in Provincetown, Mass., that "Bellow well deserves to win the Nobel prize."

Bellow is the only three-time winner of the National Book Award for fiction. "Herzog," his sixth and perhaps best known novel, also made him the first American given the International Literary Prize.

"Herzog" is a novel in a Jewish-American setting, mixing learning with humor in portraying an egocentric professor in a identity crisis writing letters to both the dead and living.

"Humboldt's Gift" deals with the woes of a writer resembling Bellow who is besieged by a suing wife, a diabolical underworld character and pangs of conscience.

Likening himself to Charlie Citrine, the central character of "Humboldt's Gift," Bellow once said "I feel I've fallen short of my talents. I've fought inertia in myself. Charlie Citrine feels he's snoozed through life, missing the great events of time. I've fallen short of true wakefulness too. I've struggled with torpor."

Bellow's first big success was "The Adventure of Augie March," about the travels and adventures of a Jewish boy from Chicago who is a kind of modern Don Quixote — dodging rather than charging at the windmill arms.

Playboy profit nearly double that of previous fiscal year

Chicago (AP) — Last-quarter profits of $95,000 boosted Playboy Enterprises, Inc., earnings to $2,059,000, or 22 cents a share, for the fiscal year that ended June 30, the company said. In the last quarter of 1975, Playboy lost $640,000. The earnings compared with $1,096,000, or 12 cents a share, for the previous fiscal year. President Derick J. Daniels said, "While we are by no means satisfied with our rate of improvement, we are, nevertheless, pleased to report significant increased earnings for the year."

First National again proudly presents...

Now in its third year, "Dress A Doll" is a program that brought special joy to some 320 needy children in Lincoln last Christmas. Each received a beautiful new doll...one that was stunningly attired in a very specially created and hand-crafted outfit.

Because of the marvelous response to the program the past two years, First National is again expanding "Dress A Doll" this year. The objective...to provide for fulfilling the dreams of 350 underprivileged youngsters this Christmas.

Here's how "Dress A Doll" works...

The dolls are supplied by First National Lincoln. The outfits are created by individuals of all ages who enjoy designing and making doll clothes and who also have a desire to bring special happiness to some needy child at Christmas.

To participate, you simply stop in at any of First National's three handy locations and pick up a doll—no cash deposit, no charge.

Take the doll home with you and fashion an outfit for it...fancy or bridal gown, knit and crochet, storybook character, baby doll, or a colorful costume worn in some foreign land.

When you have completed the outfit you have designed and tailored for your doll, bring the costumed doll to First National—any time prior to November 19.

All dolls will be displayed in the lobby of First National's Main Bank at 13th and M Streets from November 23 through December 16. Based on the decisions of a panel of judges, special awards will be made for various dress classifications and for those participants 15 years of age and under.

The outfitted dolls will then be donated, as they have in the past, to the Salvation Army for distribution to families of needy children at Christmas.

"Dress A Doll"...it's a fun way for you to help answer some child's dream at Christmas. We invite your participation.

Modern home reported sex-typed

New York (AP) — A man's home may be his castle, but he heads for the garage when the going gets tough, says a university professor who studied the use of space in the home.

Likewise, said the professor, women often take refuge in the kitchens when faced with family conflict because it's considered female territory in today's "sex-typed" home.

Gail Melson, who teaches at Purdue University, said her study of 26 families and their use of space in the home showed sex roles are linked with certain places.

Such space stereotyping probably affects how families handle problems, she said Thursday in a paper read to the National Council on Family Relations.

"We've become so specialized and compartmentalized that even a room labeled for the family has evolved — the 'family room' didn't exist 30 years ago," she said.

Growing affluence and the increased space available to the average American family has resulted in territories defined by sex, and they tend to drive people apart rather than bring them together, she said.

"In many of today's sex-typed homes the opportunities for withdrawal might even outnumber the opportunities for coming together. The family room is one of the only places that is relatively free of sex-typing," said Prof. Melson, who is in Purdue's child development and family studies department.

The National Council on Family Relations is an organization of educators, the clergy, psychologists, sex counselors and others involved in family relations, said Herman Williams, a spokesman.

The current meeting, which runs through Saturday, is focusing on several areas including child abuse, sex roles in the family and divorce.

Women prisoners try to burn city jail down

It got hot in the Lincoln Police Department Thursday afternoon and the Lincoln Fire Department had to help cool things down.

The Fire Department was called to put out a fire started by women prisoners in the City-County Jail which generated a lot of heavy smoke and fumes, but little fire.

The blaze apparently was started in a pile of mattresses in the women's cellblock. Police still are investigating who is responsible for trying to set the fire-retardant mattresses on fire, Capt. Clifton Koch said.

The four women inmates, four corrections officers and two nurses were sent to a local hospital for smoke inhalation and were released. The prisoners were returned to the jail.

Police officers and firefighters had more trouble fighting the heavy smoke and toxic fumes given off by the smoldering mattresses than with the fire itself. Police officers on the first floor of the station, located in the basement of the County-City Building, opened windows and dug out fans to clear the air.

Omaha drops charges against 'family leader'

Omaha (AP) — Misdemeanor charges filed last week against alleged self-styled family leader Charles Pixler have been dismissed.

Asst. City Prosecutor Richard Dunning said four charges of unlawful damage to motor vehicles were dismissed against Pixler and a member of his so-called family, Michael Smith, 21.

They had been accused of vandalizing the automobiles of the parents and brothers of a 21-year-old woman who moved out of Pixler's dormitory-style residence in near northwest Omaha.

Police accused the pair of shooting out the car windows in an attempt to harass and scare the woman into returning to the Pixler residence.

Dunning said the charges against Smith were dropped because he was taken to Fort Dodge, Iowa, to face felony charges stemming from a similar incident against the family of a Fort Dodge girl who moved out.

Dunning said the charges against Pixler, 30, were dropped because no eyewitnesses were available to testify against him.

President Ford signs legislation.

Unemployment tax doubled in bill Ford signs

Washington (UPI) — The White House announced Thursday that President Ford has signed a bill doubling the unemployment tax on employers and extending jobless benefits to millions of workers.

When fully implemented, the increased taxes will come to $2.9 billion. Starting in 1977, the federal tax rate will go to 0.7% on the first $4,200 in wages. It is now 0.5% of that $4,200. In 1978, the wage base will rise to $6,000, with a 0.7% rate.

Under the bill, the states will be required to cover firemen, teachers, policemen and other state and local government workers. Some states now cover those voluntarily.

More candy bars buried in Omaha

Omaha (AP) — More Twin Bing candy bars were buried Thursday, this time in the Douglas County landfill.

The Food and Drug Administration contended they might have been "prepared, packed or held in unsanitary conditions."

The candy was seized in August before it was distributed, according to Asst. U.S. Atty. Robert Kokrda, and was not marketed.

Kokrda said U.S. marshals supervised the landfill burial of 18,000 bars, similar to the 4,000 buried in Lincoln several weeks ago.

Another batch of about 5,000 bars was to be destroyed in Norfolk.

The FDA's allegations resulted from an inspection in June at the Palmer Candy Co., Sioux City, Iowa, Kokrda said.

Palmer officials did not contest the lawsuit.

Nine chosen by foundation

Nine persons were named members of the Lincoln Foundation at its annual meeting Thursday.

They are Dr. Dennis B. Claridge, Jack Hart, Mrs. Hiram Hilton, Fredric Kaufman, Mrs. Albert Maxey, Dr. Paul J. Maxwell Jr., H. Jack Moors, Mrs. Frank Sigles and Leslie Bruce Wright.

Elected to the board of directors, class of 1980, were Mrs. William Griffin, Jack Hart, Mrs. Albert Maxey, Paul C. Schorr III, Mrs. Frank C. Sidles and Leslie Bruce Wright.

Immigrant novels rate honor

We in America are all sons and daughters of immigrants, and most of us still try to follow the immigrants' dream of a better life beyond the horizon.

This was the message of Sophus K. Winthur, Danish-American novelist and literary scholar, as he accepted the 1976 Mari Sandoz award from the Nebraska Library Association Thursday night.

Winthur, who came to Weeping Water in 1895 with his parents from Denmark at the age of 18 months, received the honor particularly for a trilogy about Danish immigrants to Nebraska which he wrote in the 1930's.

The three novels in the trilogy were: "Take All to Nebraska" (1936), "Mortgage Your Heart" (1937), and "This Passion Never Dies" (1938).

Stories of immigrants "help establish our relationship to the past — give us a sense of cultural history," Winthur said.

Now that there are no new places to go, he said, we must find a way to make this land where we are today a better place to live.

Winthur is professor emeritus at the University of Washington in Seattle. Besides being a novelist, he is an expert on the life and works of Eugene O'Neill.

The Meritorious Service Award went to Gwendoline E. Birky, former librarian at Southeast High School in Lincoln and cataloger for the Lincoln School system.

Helen Quirk, of Hastings, received the Trustee citation for her service on the Hastings Library Board and her work in developing regional library services.

University earmarks funds for improvement

By Nancy Hicks
Star Staff Writer

Expected improvement money for the University of Nebraska-Lincoln will be used in more than 10 areas, according to Chancellor Roy Young.

The $810,000 in improvement money, earmarked for the Lincoln campus, will be used to bring additional support to three of the areas of excellence — music, architecture and the life sciences, Young said.

In addition funds will also go to the Law College, where an accreditation committee suggested that additional faculty, an assistant dean and more secretarial help are needed.

The College of Dentistry and Teachers College will get improvement money for academic positions — primarily instructional — to help decrease the faculty/student ratio.

Money will also go to the new office of vice chancellor of research for partial support of that office and secretarial help, said Young.

Both sides appeal NU lawsuit

Citing "errors" in Lancaster County District Court Judge Samuel Van Pelt's opinion, both sides in the battle over who will control the University of Nebraska have asked for a new trial.

The motions for new trials by attorneys for both the NU Regents and the state are legal steps to protect appeal rights to the State Supreme Court.

The specifics of the motion show the areas of Van Pelt's opinion which limit the governing power of either the state or the NU Regents.

The Regents' motion contends that the court

The money will be used for adding an administrative action officer for the Lincoln campus and additional support for legal fees, some publications and purchasing on the administrative side.

Because of federal requirements some improvement money will go to the women's athletic program, said Young.

The University Museum will use improvement money for expanding some activities and improving other areas that have not been funded at an adequate level, said Young. This money is part of a commitment for the operation of the museum, he said.

The building maintenance department, which received a large cutback in operating funds this year, will receive part of the improvement money to be used for deferred maintenance, Young said.

The $810,000 improvement money is part of the university's total $112 million request from the legislature for the 1977-78 school year.

was in error when it said that the Unicameral's power is broad enough to encompass matters relating to general government of the University and that the legislature can determine raises for university employees.

The state lists as errors Van Pelt's ruling that the Regents, not the legislature, has authority over spending university cash funds and that the legislature cannot delegate its governing authority to any department head or to the executive branch of government.

Grant aids health services study

Three Big Eight universities, including the University of Nebraska, have received a four-year, $572,440 grant from the Kellogg Foundation of Battle Creek, Mich.

The grant will help finance development of a bachelor's degree program in health services administration.

The University of Missouri will coordinate the project and receive $356,728. NU and Kansas each will get $106,856.

The government division led all others today reporting 95% of their total goal with the state employee drive reaching 105%.

Additional praise was given to employees of Lincoln Electric System for achieving 111% of their goal this year.

Inness family gives tuition scholarship

United Press International
A full-tuition scholarship program for upperclassmen has been established in the University of Nebraska Foundation by Mr. and Mrs. George J. Inness, Osceola, in memory of their son, G. James Inness.

An endowed gift will provide income to support scholarships for students who have demonstrated academic merit and achievement in any area of study at UNL, the foundation said.

A native of Osceola, the late G. James Inness, his wife and two children, died in a private plane accident in August, 1975. He was senior vice president and trust officer of the First National Bank of Harlingen, Tex.

Inness was a 1966 NU graduate and earned a juris doctor degree from Baylor University after serving in the armed forces for two years. He also was a graduate of Wentworth Military Academy.

The initial G. James Inness Scholarships will be awarded in the fall of 1977 by UNL's financial aids office, the foundation said.

Youths act out courtroom scene

By Patty Beutler
Star Staff Writer

Fifth-graders at Calvert School had no trouble understanding the law when issues were reduced to disputes over babysitting money, torn comic books and a broken three-speed bike.

Ten University of Nebraska Law College students took a day this week to teach the youngsters the workings of Small Claims Court by having them act out the parts of plaintiff, defendant and judge in hypothetical courtroom scenes.

The session was the second of six weekly discussions the law school students will conduct as part of a special semester-long exploration of the law by the elementary school students.

Here's the scene junior law student Bob Van Norman played out with his group of seven.

"Judges" Mike Fink and Christine Peterson left the room while Van Norman presented the facts to "plaintiff" Don Wilson and "defendant" Debby Morse.

Don had loaned Debby his collection of 10 comic books worth $2.50 and warned her that the set must be returned in tip-top shape a week later. Instead, Debby returned five in good condition and five with rips and tears. Don demanded $2.50 in compensation and when Debby refused to pay, he took her to Small Claims Court to get justice.

Called before the judges, both Don and Debby argued their sides, with timely interruptions from the judges demanding more explicit information.

Judge Fink: "Are those old comics collectors items? How much are they worth now?"

Don: "They're about $50 each."

At this point Van Norman intervened: "You think maybe you're adding a few extra facts?" he asked of Don.

Judge Fink: "When you loaned them you should know you're taking a risk. They're bound not to come back in perfect condition."

Don: "I expected one or two tears, but not the whole book."

Judge Fink: "Maybe her pet dog got to them and she couldn't stop him. Maybe she saved half."

After hearing final arguments, about responsibility and possible replacement, Judge Fink declared: "The verdict is that Debby should pay $1.25 for half the comics she destroyed."

Added Van Norman, "That's probably a fair decision."

For the gallery, the mock courtroom scene was a display of decisive thinking and logical reasoning by the participants.

Law student Barry Waid hopes his efforts will have "some practical application on the playground" by helping the kids out with their own arguments.

Van Norman feels such exercises get the youngsters thinking about the values behind society's rules and the need for compromise.

"The judges didn't think one side was completely right. Maybe that will teach kids to empathize with the other guy," he says.

Teacher Karen McWilliams, who initiated the law unit and has arranged four outside resource speakers from the police department and court system, expects to raise her students' awareness of how laws affect all aspects of their lives.

One concrete result she's already seen in her classroom is an increased clarification in her students' thinking.

"They don't just blurt out statements. They're having to give reasons. They're really grasping on to the idea of proof."

It was a summer law class through the Lincoln public schools that spurred on Ms. McWilliams interest in the law. Her enthusiasm has apparently filtered down to her students.

"When they spend free reading time going over law books, that's when you know it's getting to them," she says.

Mike Fink gestures as he argues point with law student Bob Van Norman during mock courtroom scene.

Judges Don Wilson and Lacy Knutson discuss one of finer points of law.

Tax crusade began in blizzard

By J. L. Schmidt

Star Staff Writer

Doris Royal's call to crusade for tax reform came during a blizzard on the farm she and husband Lloyd operate near Springfield.

"We had known for some time that the government wouldn't give me credit for the work I contribute on the farm," she said, "and after one particularly hectic day during a blizzard, I decided to do something."

Although weary from feeding cattle, she said she had enough energy to draw up a petition asking for reform in estate taxes.

"The idea snowballed, and in a short-time my crusade had spread from Sarpy County to all 50 states," she said.

In an interview with the U.S. News Service in Washington, D.C., last week, she expressed surprise that President Ford had heard of her efforts. It was her involvement that won her a spot on the National Commission on the Observance of International Women's Year.

The commission, created by an executive order from Ford last year, is designed to focus its attention on areas of inequality that linger in various fields of participation for women, Mrs. Royal said.

"Women in Nebraska have one advantage in that the Legislature has voted, 43-0, for equal contribution of spouses in the state," she explained.

But estate laws still don't recognize contribution, she said, adding, "If my husband were to die I couldn't afford to inherit the farm because the inheritance taxes are too high."

A woman's labor does not contribute to the value of an estate, she said.

"But, if I got a job outside the home and brought in a salary that could be used to pay a hired man to do the work that I now do on the farm, then my contribution would count. I don't understand why it has to be money," she said.

Mrs. Royal further bemoans the fact that she doesn't stand to get any special Social Security coverage while working on the farm, only the benefits she's entitled to through her husband.

"There is no way I can build benefits as a working farm person," she said. "I am including under his individual retirement account as a small businessman, however."

The results of her crusade still amaze her.

"It's unbelievable that one farm wife, with no particular organization behind me, can have an influence on people from all the states. Some have even sent money to be used to defray the costs of this costly endeavor," she said.

"My family still can't believe it. I was a typical farm wife, not active in any organizations, just a few social clubs. Can you believe it? Not my mom, my kids said."

Mrs. Royal feels that farm women definitely should become active, but urban women need a voice too. The largest battle is on the front of small businesses and family farms, but "others should get involved too," she said.

Doris Royal started ball rolling.

Denim tuxedo designed especially for Carter

Atlanta (UPI) — Blue denim tuxedos may become the new fashion in men's formal wear if Jimmy Carter is elected president, according to the head of a clothing firm.

Benjamin J. Gingiss, head of what he says is the world's largest company specializing in formal wear, designed the new line of denim evening wear with the Georgia Democrat in mind.

"We haven't had anybody in the White House with flair in clothing since the Kennedys, and if Gov. Carter is elected, I think the denim tuxedo I designed will be just the thing he wants. I think he'll love it, even if he isn't elected," said Gingiss, who has sold formal wear to Carter in the past.

Although Gingiss originally planned to give Carter the tuxedo, the candidate has a strict policy about not accepting gifts. "Of course, I'll sell it to him for about $150," Gingiss said. He says if he designed a tuxedo for President Ford it would be the traditional version, possibly with a cutaway jacket.

The denim design doesn't look like a pair of bibbed overalls — it's a three-piece outfit with a vest and navy satin trim on the slacks, buttons and around the collar. The fabric can be worn year-round, Gingiss said.

Fashions reflect the history of the country and the different moods we've seen. And the formal wear business is the same. People are becoming more relaxed and still want to preserve an elegant touch for the evening," Gingiss said.

"And look at denim. It's the most important fabric of this decade."

How would you handle dummy?

By B. Jay Becker

1. You are declarer with the West hand at Seven Spades and North leads the jack of clubs. How would you play the hand?

♠ KQJ1075 ♠ A43
♥ AKJ62 ♥ 95
♦ AQ ♦ J97543
♣ — ♣ AK

2. You are declarer with the West hand at Three Notrump and North leads the queen of clubs. The contract can be made regardless of how the adverse cards are divided, but how would you play the hand to assure at least nine tricks?

♠ AK4 ♠ Q102
♥ Q1087 ♥ 53
♦ K95 ♦ AQ1063
♣ A62 ♣ K94

1. There is no way to guarantee making the contract, so all you can do is try to find the best method of play.

Discard a heart on the king of clubs and lead a low trump to the king. Assuming both defenders follow suit, cash the queen also. Regardless of whether the trumps are divided 2-2 or 3-1, play the A-K of hearts and trump a heart with the ace.

If the hearts prove to be divided 3-3 or the queen appears on the second heart lead, your jack of hearts is a trick and you can discard the queen of diamonds on the ace of clubs.

But if the heart queen has not appeared after you've played three rounds of the suit, discard the jack of hearts on the ace of clubs and try your luck with a diamond finesse. The cards may be stacked so that you can't make the contract whatever you do, but the suggested line of play offers the best chance. All you can do is hope it works out.

2. Win the club in either hand, cash the ace of diamonds, and play a low diamond. If South follows low, finesse the nine. This play guarantees the contract even though the nine loses to North's jack. There is no combination of cards the defenders can have that would permit them to cash four heart tricks at this point. The worst that can happen, if you adopt this method of play, is that you lose three hearts and a diamond.

If you neglected to finesse the nine of diamonds, you would go down if South held:

♠ J975 ♥ A64 ♦ J872 ♣ 73

You would make only eight tricks in that case. If you attempted to establish one more by giving up a diamond, South would win with the jack and return a low heart, whereupon the defense would collect four heart tricks and put you down one.

How you raise your children doesn't matter

(c) Chicago Daily News

Chicago — It makes no difference how you rear your children, a pediatrician says. They all turn out the same.

Permissive parents have as many conflicts with their children as those who rear them strictly, said Dr. Richard Chamberlain, an associate professor at the University of Rochester.

There is "no evidence that the accommodative method has produced a large number of spoiled brats, or that the strict, authoritative style has produced a large number of submissive, or overly hostile and aggressive children," he said.

Chamberlain based his conclusions on a study of middle-class children in suburbs of Rochester, N.Y.

There is no evidence, he said, to support the notion that strict parental supervision has produced either "robot-like martinets or children with a lot of pent-up hostilities which they unleash on their teachers or peers."

Chamberlain said children generally have an "easy type of temperament" that allows them to adapt to a wide variety of child-rearing techniques.

He advised fellow pediatricians to help parents "enjoy their children" by relieving their "guilt feelings that they alone are responsible for the way their children behave."

Fewer students caught since 2 had to eat cigarettes

The Lincoln Star

Friday, 10/27/76 ■ Page 11

Hume, Mo. (ap) — School officials here have had a lot of problems since two high school students became sick after being forced to eat tobacco, but they say they've had fewer violations of the no-tobacco regulations.

The controversy started after three students were caught carrying cigarettes in their pockets. The principal gave them the usual choice of punishments — submit to a paddling or eat the offending tobacco.

Terry Weatherman, 15, and Bill Adkins, 14, took the unusual of the two choices and ate the tobacco from 18 cigarettes.

Kenneth Hightower, principal at Hume High School in this community of 350 about 68 miles south of Kansas City, says students usually opt for two swats from a wooden paddle.

Terry and Bill began to vomit after eating the tobacco. Mrs. William Adkins took her son to a doctor when he began spitting up blood.

The two mothers angrily attended the next school board meeting, but the principal's action was upheld by the board.

The administration has received a lot of support from the 110 junior and senior high school students. In a letter to the editor published in The Kansas City Star Oct. 8, Andy Clark, student body president, said the majority of students support Hightower's action.

Since the incident, Hightower said only two students have been punished for carrying tobacco products — one had cigarettes and the other chewing tobacco. One of them was Clark.

Hightower said Clark's opinion remained unchanged.

Since doctor told him to quit, man has been a cigarette bum

DEAR ABBY: A man in our office was told by his doctor to quit smoking (Heart, emphysema and asthma.) Well, this guy decided that the best way to quit smoking was to quit BUYING cigarettes, and that's our problem.

He buys cigarettes from every smoker he sees, and I don't mean just one cigarette. Yesterday I gave him six, and several others in the office contributed, too.

It's awfully hard to turn down a guy who asks for a cigarette, but I'm fed up with his bumming. If he's going to smoke, don't you think he should buy his own?

Nobody in this office has the nerve to tell him — including me. Any suggestions?

CHICKEN

DEAR CHICKEN: If a diabetic asked you for sugar, would you give it to him? And would you give an alcoholic a drink? The cigarette bummer desperately needs support from his coworkers to help him to quit his habit. Be a friend and say no.

DEAR ABBY: My fiancé is 28 and I am 24. Jeff's friends are having a stag party for him, and from what I hear about the plans, it is going to be very exciting. They're having stag films, and a naked girl is going to jump out of a big cake!

Dear Abby

By Abigail
Van Buren

In days gone by, all the bride got was a lot of boring showers, but my girlfriends want to change all that. They're planning a "bachelor girls' party" with films just like the men's, and a naked guy jumping out of a cake. I think it's a neat idea, but Jeff is against it.

I think his objections are unfair. What do you think?

ALL FOR EQUALITY

DEAR ALL FOR: Of course, Jeff's objections are unfair. Just be sure all the "girls" know what to expect in case Granny or Aunt Matilda have weak hearts — or stomachs.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have been married for seven years, and we are very happy. We know other couples who have been married about the same length of time, and they aren't at all happy. In fact, they fight a lot.

The secret to our happiness is one simple rule we follow: Treat each other like a human being FIRST, like a man or a woman SECOND, like a husband or wife THIRD.

This has worked for us. It may for others, too.

STILL HONEYMOONERS
DEAR HONEYMOONERS: If you can make a rule that works for seven years work for seven times seven, you've got it made. Good luck.

DEAR ABBY: A woman who belongs to my bridge club recently made a needlepoint sampler bearing the following message: "NEEDLEPOINT HAS REPLACED SEX!"

She framed it and hung it in her den where we play bridge.

Ever since she displayed it, no one has had the nerve to bring out her needlepoint — even when she's dummy.

'Sex Hot Line' set up

Boston (UPD) — To whom do people turn when they have questions about sex but not the money to pay the fee for a high priced psychiatrist?

"Sex Hot Line" may be the answer for many Massachusetts residents.

The service sponsored by the New England Institute for Human Sexuality is free and all calls will be kept anonymous.

"There are many types of hit lines, but this one is unique in the sense that this one is strictly for sex," says Dr. Peter A. Wish, executive director of the institute. "We are here to talk just about sex, and believe me many people have lots of questions."

Wish, a psychologist, said the hot line came into existence because of the hundreds of calls received by the institute from people with questions ranging from how to tell their children about the "birds and the bees" to sexually related marital problems.

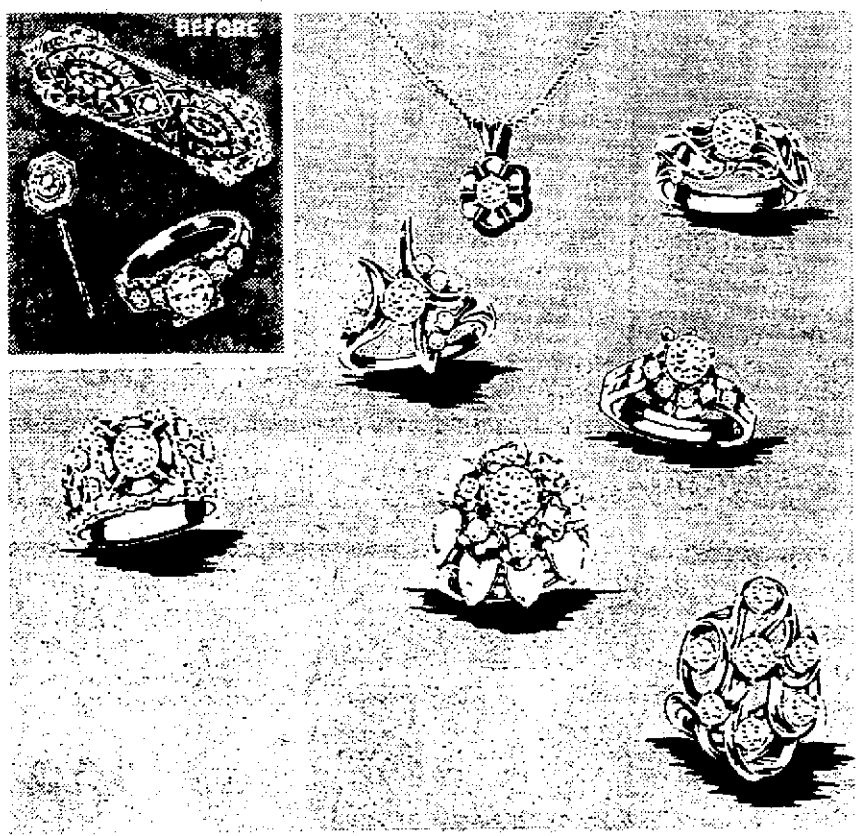

"We've gotten a lot of calls since the institute was established in 1972," Wish said.

"People have certain myths and fears and fallacies about sex and this is the place where they can call to get the answers," Wish said.

Persons who call will be put in direct communication with qualified physicians or psychiatrists on the institute staff.

"I don't see where the money goes," grandmother said. "Seems like everything at the store costs more."

From behind the evening paper, my grandfather growled that it was "the blasted Democratic administration." We were a straight Republican family. Had been ever since Abraham Lincoln out-debated Stephen Douglas at the fairgrounds, not far from my great grandfather's farm in down state Illinois.

Everybody went to the Lincoln-Douglas debates. They talked about it for days after.

These Ford-Carter things seem awfully tame to me.

One thing hasn't changed. It seems like everything at the store costs more. Do I think Ford or Carter will change that? Not ruddy likely, mate.

When I don't see where the money goes, I go to the banker. Bankers are straight arrow. Every six months — whether I owe money or not — the banker sends me a questionnaire.

Same questions: "Loans outstanding. Mortgage payments. Other savings accounts." A long list.

On the list there is always this question: "Mother's Maiden Name."

I can't figure it out. Does the banker think mother keeps changing her maiden name?

Does he think mother is a deadbeat? Skipping the electric light bills?

I don't ask. I fill it in. We don't tinker with the banker. Let well enough alone.

Warm autumn days now. At one time I rented a scatter in a swiny apartment complex by the Bay.

"Tennis Courts. Pool. Cable TV. Children and Pets Welcome."

One reason pets were welcome, you paid an extra hundred dollars.

I said: "Ye gods! A hundred skins for one cat?"

Well, it seems the hundred covered any number of pets. For any length of time.

I said: "With a six-month lease, that works out we're paying $16 a month rent for the cat. If my banker hears I'm tossing money like that for cat housing, I'll never get another loan."

I moved in a kitten — they should split the cat rent. It sounded more reasonable.

This used to be country living out here. But the suburbs are filling up. Hardly room to put a window box between scatters. Let alone raise chickens.

I had in mind to write a book about that simple life.

I knew an author who wrote such a book. He put his wife's name on it.

"When my husband first proposed that we move to the country, I was aghast. The prospect was frightening. How could I, a city housewife, cope with chickens and cows?"

Well, it turned out she could cope. As long as the typewriter ribbon held out.

The book went on how they remodeled the old farmhouse. How she wept when she collected her first dozen eggs from the hens.

Everything was oak fires and maple syrup. A new outlook on life.

That was what I had in mind. But before I could gather an egg, our suburbs became popular with the under-30 people.

The rock groups live here. The villages are filled with beads and health food stores.

The book stores sell books on living off the land. Somebody else's land. How to rip off a supermarket. "Don't put all the eggs in one pocket."

Tires, cable hold down grass

Galveston, Tex. (UPI) — Texas scientists are using a device constructed of old tires and steel cable to prevent washout of grasses along Gulf Coast beaches.

The wave-stilling devices, about three feet tall, were designed by J. D. Dodd and J. W. Webb, scientists with the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station.

The two said the old tires looped together with steel cable has proven effective in eliminating losses of transplants of grass due to washouts.

Treasure search called off

New Delhi, India (UPI) — The search for the fabled Jaipur Maharajah treasure of gold and jewels worth billions which a faded map said was buried in an underground labyrinth guarded by fierce tribesmen has been quietly called off, it was reported Thursday.

The Statesman, the second newspaper in recent days to report the failure of the search beneath Jaigarh Fort in the "Pink City" of Jaipur, said the digging by local laborers and soldiers carrying metal detectors ended as quietly as it began.

The search "was stopped on Sept. 30 and the army personnel were given a farewell on Oct. 9," the newspaper said.

Income tax officials launched the Jaipur treasure hunt, a search for a hoard of maharajah's gold and jewels worth billions, after receiving an old coded map from a member of the Mina Tribe, whose members had guarded the riches.

According to legend, the guards would allow the Maharajah of Jaipur, about 120 miles southwest of New Delhi, to enter the treasure room blindfolded once a year to take away one object.

Officials estimated the treasure, including a 90-carat emerald and rubies the size of pigeons' eggs, to be worth more than $100 million. However, the officials said sale of the treasure would bring about $60 billion at current market rates.

Archeologists, geologists, army police and members of the former House of Jaipur descended on the city and workers were kept within the confines of the fort to maintain secrecy.

Tunnels and numerous underground water storage tanks were found, but no gold or jewels were uncovered.

Officials had agreed to share the loot with descendants of the maharajahs but those who benefited most were the 200 local laborers who were paid about $1.25 daily plus meals to help with the excavations.

Nebraska grant is $10 million

Kansas City, Mo. (UPI) — The U.S. Labor Department Thursday allocated almost $10 million to Nebraska for employment and training programs for the fiscal year which began Oct. 1.

The funds were appropriated under the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act.

The allocation provides basic funds for classroom training, on the job training, work experience, summer youth employment, vocational and remedial education, counseling, job placement and transitional public service employment.

A special grant to the governor's office of $1,095,251 will be used to cover the operation of the State Manpower Council, supplemental vocational educational services and special statewide services.

Programs in outstate Nebraska will receive $4,789,194. The city of Lincoln will get $795,182 and $3,294,913 was allocated for programs in the Omaha area.

The funds are divided on a formula established by Congress which included such factors as unemployment rates and the number of low income families in each area.

Registration specified for government vehicles

The Nebraska Justice Department Thursday held a motor vehicle leased to a government agency may not necessarily be registered as a government vehicle.

The question on registration was posed by Steven M. Curry, Merrick County Attorney.

J. Kirk Brown, assistant attorney general, said motor vehicles must be registered to the actual owner rather than the government entity to which they are leased.

The only exception is when the vehicle is leased for more than 30 days and is subject to possession at any time by the agency. Brown said in that case the vehicle can be registered as a government vehicle.

41 counties to get disaster designation

United Press International

Gov. J. James Exon said Thursday he has been advised unofficially that 41 Nebraska counties have been designated as drought and hail disaster areas and another five were rejected.

Exon reiterated there has been no official approval on his Aug. 30 request for a declaration by the U.S. Agriculture Department.

The governor had suggested that 46 counties be recommended for emergency assistance on the basis of suggestions from local Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service offices and county disaster committees.

The five counties rejected were Clay, Franklin, Gosper, Harlan and Kearney. Exon said federal officials have been advised by lending institutions in those counties there were sufficient loan funds available through conventional channels even though the interest rate was high.

Exon said the official designation has been delayed because some correspondence was inadvertently mislaid in Washington. He maintained the delay was "inexcusable."

The counties apparently approved include:

Adams, Boone, Burt, Butler, Chase, Colfax, Cuming, Douglas, Dundys, Frontier, Furnas, Hayes, Boyd, Cass, Cherry, Dixon, Keya Paha, Lincoln, Pierce, Thayer, Wayne, Hitchcock, Lancaster, Madison, Nemaha, Platte, Red Willow, Sarpy, Saunders, Seward, Stanton, Washington, Antelope, Brown, Cedar, Dakota, Knox, Nance, Rock and Thurston.

Zoo's bears at their best

Omaha (AP) — The Henry Doorly Zoo is preparing for winter and so are its bears.

"This is a great time of year for bears," said Lee Simmons, zoo director. "They look their absolute best now as far as their coats are concerned."

He said about 90% of the zoo's animals will be on display until the zoo closes for the winter Oct. 31 and invited bear enthusiasts to visit the zoo while the bears' winter coats thicken.

Doctor tells autopsy findings

By Michael Holmes
Outstate Nebraska Bureau

Nebraska City — An autopsy showed that Sharron Wilken died following a "massive skull fracture," a pathologist testified Thursday in the trial of Mrs. Wilken's husband Duane.

Dr. Richard Wilson, who performed the autopsy on Mrs. Wilken's body, said he believed the injury was caused by "one or more blows" to the left side of the woman's forehead.

The prosecution has alleged that Mrs. Wilken was struck on the head and killed April 10 in the Unadilla cafe operated by her and husband Duane.

Testifying for 1½ hours Thursday, Dr. Wilson described the injuries suffered by Mrs. Wilken and said they likely were caused by "a blunt object, not a sharp edge, not completely flat."

Among exhibits being used by Otoe County Atty. William Davis is a truck tire tester, an object resembling a small baseball bat, which allegedly belonged to Wilken.

Using color slide photographs taken during the autopsy, Dr. Wilson described several fractures of Mrs. Wilken's head and face. The bone ridge above the eyes, was broken and he said "It requires considerable force" to break that bone.

Chief defense attorney Richard Hoch unsuccessfully objected to use of the 18 autopsy slides. In objecting, he said any value of the photos was outweighed by "the very nature of the pictures and the effect they will have on the jury."

Mrs. Wilken's body was burned and buried near the couple's rural Palmyra home. Dr. Wilson also said that portions of the body's legs, and part of one arm were missing.

Under cross examination, he said some of the facial fractures could have been caused by a fall. He also said some bones break easily after being burned.

"Just moving a burned body around will cause broken bones then?" Hoch asked.

"It's possible, yes," Dr. Wilson replied.

Much of Thursday's testimony was from State Patrol investigators.

Investigator Gale Griess described the discovery of Mrs. Wilken's body. He said it had been buried in a shallow grave under one of two trash piles in the garden of the Wilken home.

He also described finding the letter "D" over the date April 10 on a calendar in the basement of the house.

Griess and Investigator Gary Caradori testified about their observations in the Wilken's Unadilla cafe.

Griess said he noticed what appeared to be spots of blood in the rear area of the restaurant. He also said he asked Wilken if fresh meat was brought through the rear door and Wilken replied no. He said only frozen meat was brought in, Griess testified.

Earlier, Caradori said spots of "a red substance" were found in several places in the cafe, including on cardboard boxes, some paneling and a part of the ceiling.

During three full days of testimony, both prosecution and defense attorneys have offered as evidence photos of the cafe's interior. Thursday Hoch offered 13 photos, most of one corner of a counter.

Another prosecution witness, Otoe County Sheriff Russ Seals, showed the jury $5,400 in cash he said Wilken was carrying when found by law enforcement officers on April 24.

Seals displayed the cash, which he said was $2,760 in 20-dollar bills, $1,490 in 10s, $650 in fives and $500 in ones, plus a single penny.

In earlier testimony, Mrs. Wilken's sister-in-law, Charlotte Carper, said that on April 4, Mrs. Wilken had a two-inch-thick stack of bills in her possession, much of it 20 and 50-dollar bills.

"I hope to make a contribution based on my experience with foreign trade in the Senate Finance Committee and with agriculture as a long-standing member of that committee," Curtis said.

Jordan wants apology.

By Harry Jackson
Star Staff Writer

A national black leader demanded Thursday that President Ford's campaign staff stop using in advertising a photograph which falsely implies that he endorses Ford.

Vernon Jordan Jr., executive director of the National Urban League, said "The picture was taken in a nonpolitical meeting and now is being used in a partisan political advertisement."

Following a speech to the Nebraska Institute of Social Work and Human Services at the Nebraska Center for Continuing Education, Jordan said he sent Ford a telegram "also demanding a public apology for this."

Jordan said the photograph was taken at a recent meeting between Ford and several black leaders. He said the ad has been published in several black newspapers.

In other comments, Jordan criticized Ford and Democratic presidential candidate Jimmy Carter for ignoring problems of the cities and poor people in their campaigns.

The election campaign is focusing on withdrawal of government for social welfare programs, Jordan said, "a defeatist attitude that counsels appeasement and withdrawal rather than involvement and activism."

He added, "We know from experience that less government means less protection for people without resources. Less spending means fewer desperately needed social programs and stark hunger for those in poverty."

"Fewer government employees mean fewer public services," Jordan said. "Less government interference means abandonment of civil rights enforcement."

Jordan said that more important than who wins the presidential election is that black people get out and vote.

He endorsed a "76 in '76" campaign which hopes to pull 76% of the black vote for the election.

"Anything less than 76% says something about the credibility of the candidates," Jordan said.

Concerning the history of the civil rights movement, Jordan said there's no way the type of leadership of the 1960s will become evident again.

He said the charismatic leader was historically common to the '60s and, "The movement of the '60s involved the drama, the demands. Now it's time to implement those things."

Jordan also endorsed two Urban League proposals for a national full employment policy "that guarantees decent jobs at decent wages to everyone capable of working," and a national income maintenance program which would "replace the welfare system by putting an income floor beneath each family."

Sen. Curtis to lead Chinese mission

Minden (UPI) — U.S. Sen. Carl T. Curtis, R-Nebr., said he has been named by President Ford to lead a delegation of six senators and their wives on a mission to China next month.

Curtis said the mission would provide an opportunity to gain "considerable information that will be valuable in determining the future of relations between our two countries."

Group continues attack on Winkle

By Dean Terrill

Southeast Nebraska Bureau

Beatrice — A local attorney and a former juvenile probation officer flown in from California accused Gage-Jefferson County Judge Dennis Winkle Thursday night of habitually making decisions on juvenile cases before hearing the evidence in his courtroom.

Some 200 persons at a second "Citizens For Justice" meeting were also told that the 39-year-old judge is frequently unfair, inconsistent and inhumane and that this creates juvenile distrust of the entire court system.

William Jordan of Chula Vista, Calif., was the announced headline speaker, but attorney Gary Thompson of Beatrice drew a standing ovation following his sharp criticism of Winkle's 11-year record.

Jordan, who resigned in early 1975, after nine months here, made the judge's probation system his principal target. Thompson concentrated on Winkle's alleged partiality and ethical violations.

Thompson, one of the first attorneys to speak openly against Winkle, conceded that he is "fair and just and a good judge" in the majority of cases.

"But we should have the right to more than 60% justice or 70% justice or 80% justice," said the attorney. "I think we have the right to demand 100% justice from every judge we have... if there is one instance in which he is not fair, he should not be on the bench."

Reviewing several specific cases, Thompson pointed out various Winkle rulings as examples of purported inconsistencies or harsh treatment. He also cited four instances wherein the judge overruled prosecution dismissal motions — said to be direct contradictions of a Nebraska Supreme Court ruling.

One example of an alleged unfairness was the case of a youth who spent 2½ years on probation after breaking a $16 window. Thompson contrasted this to the three-year probation given a woman in another local court for embezzling some $25,000.

Thompson also accused Winkle of discussing cases out of court and of making decisions prior to the presentation of evidence. Jordan particularly elaborated on the latter.

"Ninety-nine times out of 100 when we went into that court, the decision was already made," said the Californian. "Is that fair, is that consistent, is that just?"

A college graduate in criminal justice, the 32-year-old Jordan said Winkle commits too many juveniles to the Kearney Youth Development Center, which he described as "only for hard-core criminal juveniles."

He also suggested that many youths are placed in foster homes unnecessarily.

"There were so many instances in which I felt Winkle was unjust and dealing with people in a vindictive way," Jordan added.

It was announced at the conclusion of the meeting that Jordan will speak again Friday night at a similar protest session. Linus Betka, chairman of the group seeking to oust the judge, said the 7:30 p.m. meeting will be at Holiday Villa. Thompson will address another session in Fairbury next Wednesday night.

Fire damages building

A fire which started in an apartment in a brick building at 6540 Garland did considerable damage to the interior of the structure Thursday evening.

The apartment received the heaviest damage, but there was also fire and smoke damage to a portion of the building occupied by Bob Aguilar Plumbing Co.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Brown, new tenants, had just moved most of their belongings into the apartment, then left twenty minutes before the fire started.

When firemen arrived, fire had broken out the front windows and was lapping at the roof.

Young woman is suspect in dairy store robbery

Lincoln police said Thursday that a young woman who robbed the Goodrich Dairy Store, 1126 South St., stole between $50 and $60.

A woman, described as being white, 18-22 years old, 5-foot, three-inches tall with blonde hair, robbed the clerk of the dairy at gunpoint Wednesday night.

The clerk told police the woman walked into the store about 9:15 p.m., pointed a revolver at the clerk and said "Take the money out of the cash register and put it in a paper sack."

The robbery of the dairy store is the second robbery this week. On Tuesday, a man assaulted the owner of the Royal Pawn Shop, 118 S. 9th St., and stole two .38-caliber revolvers.

Farmers push ag research into limelight of regents' contest

By Dominick Costello
Farm Editor

Farmers' concern over research and development at the University of Nebraska has propelled research policies into the limelight in the contest for four regent's offices this year.

Farm organizations have gathered into two militant groups with a direct interest in university activities involving agriculture. They are the so-called 40 group, which has 41 members, and the Nebraska Agricultural Council, which has 20 organizations as members.

The council held a meeting with candidates and sitting regents on Aug. 17 to discuss a wide variety of university policies and in particular, research.

Since that meeting, the candidates have moved closer to the council's positions on research policies and requirements.

Interviews of all eight candidates by The Lincoln Star indicates that all of them support agricultural research, would ask for state tax dollars to pay for part of the cost and feel that scientists need more assistants to do the actual work on research projects.

The candidates include Dr. Robert Koefoot of Grand Island, incumbent, and his opponent, Mrs. Fred Seaton of Hastings; Kermit Wagner of Schuyler, incumbent, and his opponent, Merle Hansen of Newman Grove; Dr. Robert Prokop of Wilber, incumbent, and his opponent, Willard Waldo of Dewitt, and James Moylan of Omaha, incumbent, and his opponent, Dr. William Miner of Omaha.

One of the warmer conflicts erupted over the idea of using checkoff funds deducted from farmers' sales of livestock and grains to support research.

Most of the candidates would accept the funds that farm groups want to donate to specific research projects but none felt these funds should become a major source of money for research projects because the projects actually benefit all the citizens of the state.

Hansen flatly opposed use of checkoff funds at all and Prokop had serious reservations about using checkoff funds, suggesting that in times of poor prices they added to the financial burden of farmers.

Mrs. Seaton suggested that having some checkoff funds in research projects tended to make farmers pay more attention to what the university was doing in the entire research area, but added, "They must be a minor part of the funding for research."

Waldo and Wagner indicated they were willing to ask for state tax funds because it is a good investment, citing the economic returns from wheat research. "Whenever you get two dollars back for one spent on research, I feel no qualms about asking for tax funds," Waldo said.

Areas the candidates want researched in the future include increased emphasis on new varieties that can get along with less water, better use of irrigation water and better ways to hold rain on the land.

Mrs. Seaton and Koefoot, who live in an area where water use has been controversial, both cited water use and conservation as vital areas of research.

Miner and Moylan represent a non-agricultural area but both indicated support for agricultural areas in the university.

Miner said, "It doesn't matter if the regent represents Omaha or some other area of the state. Agriculture is very important to the state."

Moylan added, "People in metropolitan areas benefit when farmers grow more wheat, and all areas of the state benefit from agricultural research."

A shortage of funds for hourly workers who wash test tubes and do physical work in fields and with livestock was recognized as a problem by all candidates but produced a wide variety of suggested cures.

Moylan and Miner proposed advance funding for such labor before a project is approved.

Hansen suggested federal funds might be found to cover this kind of cost. Prokop suggested that a system of assistants to research scientists be developed to give students practical experience in the field they intend to work in and some funds while attending college.

Mrs. Seaton suggested funding student labor to provide jobs for students who could earn money to stay in school while learning on the job.

Hansen, Waldo and Prokop cited the problem as an opportunity to combine extra training for students with getting needed work done and expanding a scientists' ability to produce research at the same time.

Koefoot noted that there is a special provision for technicians in the new budget just approved by the regents. Wagner suggested that university administrators could solve the problem if the Legislature would allow the regents to spend money where it was needed rather than restricting spending to specific areas.

Waldo noted that agricultural's demands for better service from the university staff would increase. "Agriculture has been neglected for years. We're going to see demands for better facilities in the years ahead from farm groups. They are long overdue," he said.

Heart attack cause of death

Omaha (UPI) — Preliminary autopsy results on a 69-year-old Omahan confirmed Thursday he suffered a fatal heart attack after receiving a swine flu shot, but there was no relation between the two incidents.

Dr. James Wegener, acting Omaha-Douglas County Health Dept. director, said the autopsy on Harry Barker, 69, showed "a severely advanced coronary artery disease."

Wegener said he attended the autopsy at Douglas County Hospital and conferred with doctors who performed it.

"We are convinced at this point in time that the shot was unrelated to the heart attack," Wegener said. "As far as we're concerned there will be no more tests along this line. We will await the final autopsy report which should take a week to 10 days."

Wegener said Barker collapsed Wednesday after receiving the shot at one of 17 immunization clinics in the Omaha area. The director said before Barker received the shot, he told a nurse he had no history of heart trouble.

Private inoculations advised

Associated Press

While emphasizing his belief that swine flu vaccinations are safe, the director of the State Health Department has recommended that those with heart problems be immunized in their doctor's office, rather than at public clinics.

Dr. Henry D. Smith said Thursday, "Partly as a result of the time related deaths, the question has been raised whether persons with heart problems should be immunized in public clinics."

Smith said his recommendation is that those being treated for heart disease, or who are "sufficiently infirm as to require physical assistance," be vaccinated in their doctors' offices, instead of in a clinic.

"Nebraska has had two deaths which from a time standpoint have been associated with the swine flu inoculation," Smith said.

"Both have been fully investigated by local and state health authorities and were attributed to acute cardiac episodes," Smith said.

"These factors have been compared with a . . . report from the Center for Disease Control in which statistical analysis has been made of 24-hour death rates for all age groups during a period when influenza immunization was going on and for a like period without such activity," Smith said.

"Nebraska experience correlates closely with this national study, which concludes that there is not a causal relationship between these deaths and the administration of flu vaccine," Smith said.

He said Nebraska's immunization program is actively underway throughout the state.

Railroad chief dead

Chicago (AP) — Larry S. Provo, the head of the company that runs the Chicago & North Western Railroad, died at Northwestern Memorial Hospital of cancer. He was 49.

"Jan Gauger's experience and involvement with both public and private health care services is invaluable in the effort to reduce health care costs."

Health care has become a major concern of every citizen. The past few years have witnessed an increased shift in health care responsibility to county jurisdiction. Jan Gauger has been both aware and responsive to these new demands. She has helped administer the limited funds available in an efficient, business-like manner. We are confident Jan Gauger will continue to give health care programs the attention they deserve.

Gov. Exon and candidate Cavanaugh shaking in Omaha.

Exon offers handshake advice

Omaha (AP) — "When you're trying to shake their hand, you haven't got time to shove something into it," advises Gov. J. James Exon after an estimated 100,000 campaign handshakes.

So campaign aides handed out the leaflets as Exon, 55, showed the campaign ropes to Democratic protégé John Cavanaugh, 31, a congressional candidate.

Exon, who helped Cavanaugh shake over 1,000 hands outside Western Electric and Northwestern Bell on a blustery Wednesday, said he learned campaign techniques from former Gov. Frank Morrison. Now, he campaigns for fellow Democrats "almost every night."

"Both times I ran for governor, I got a callus" between the thumb and finger from constant handshaking, said Exon during a motor home interview between campaign stops.

The governor said some passersby Wednesday "were surprised to see me. One guy told me, 'you've got my vote.'"

Exon said a winning handshake shouldn't be limp, but "if you permanently disable somebody, you might not get their vote."

Exon finds supermarkets and shopping centers have "great traffic" for campaigning. But if workers are on their way home, a politician could get lost in a stampede, Cavanaugh learned.

Thurman Munson scores first run for the Yankees.

Reds win World Series

NEW YORK (UPI) — A rejuvenated Johnny Bench, a broken down part of the "Big Red Machine" during the season, helped the Cincinnati Reds become the first National League team in 54 years to win consecutive World Series Thursday night by crashing a pair of homers and driving in five runs to spark a 7-2 triumph over the New York Yankees that completed a four-game sweep.

It marked the first four-game sweep in the World Series since 1966 when the Baltimore Orioles took the Los Angeles Dodgers, and in winning back-to-back world championships the Reds became the first NL team since the 1921-22 New York Giants to achieve that distinction.

It was somehow fitting that Bench would emerge as the hero of the final game, since he struggled through the worst season of his big league career. Battered by injuries, he batted only .234 and hit just 16 home runs with 74 rbi's. But throughout his career he has always had the reputation of coming through in the big games and once again he responded to the challenge.

Bench's first big moment came in the fourth inning. The Reds trailed 1-0 but quickly tied the score when Joe Morgan walked, stole second and scored on a two-out single by George Foster. Bench, batting seventh in the Reds' powerful lineup, then unloaded a drive off Ed Figueroa that hit off the left field foul pole for his fourth World Series homer.

It was the second clutch home run for Bench in postseason competition this year. He hit a dramatic two-out homer in the ninth inning of the third game of the NL playoffs against Philadelphia and the Reds went on to win that game.

Bench wasn't through, however. In the ninth, after walks to Tony Perez and Dan Driessen, he lined a shot into the left field seats off reliever Dick Tidrow to trigger a four-run inning that wrapped up the contest. The Reds then rubbed salt into the Yankee wounds by adding a run on successive doubles by Cesar Geronimo and Dave Concepcion.

Bench finished the Series with eight hits in 15 at bats and received Sport Magazine's award as most valuable player.

Gary Nolan and Will McEnaney also figured prominently for the Reds in the final game. Nolan, a disappointment in three previous World Series, won his first Series game by allowing eight hits in 6 2-3 innings while McEnaney pitched hitless ball over the last 2 1-3 innings. The Yankees failed to score off a Reds' reliever in the Series.

The Yankees did have scoring chances, but once again it was their failure to hit in the clutch and some careless baserunning that took them out of two big scoring opportunities.

Only Thurman Munson, who had a perfect 4-for-4 and tied a Series record with six consecutive hits over two games, was consistent for the Yankees. Munson singled and scored the Yankees' first run in the first inning and singled home the other run in the fifth.

The Yankees could have broken the game open in the third, however, if they could have gotten that big hit in the clutch, like the Reds did from Bench.

New York loaded the bases in the third on a walk to Fred Stanley, a single by Munson and Joe Morgan's second error of the Series, but Nolan got Carlos May to fly to left field to end the threat.

In the fourth the Yankees also had a chance for a big inning but Graig Nettles was picked off second base when Willie Randolph missed a bunt attempt. There were runners on first and second and none out at the time and when Randolph missed a sacrifice attempt, Bench threw to Rose at third who threw back to Morgan at second to trap Nettles off base. Randolph then struck out and Stanley fled to right to end the threat.

Yankees' Manager Billy Martin did not go quietly. The volatile Martin was ejected from the game in the ninth inning.

Hypnotist helps East Gridders Husker freshmen eye Missouri

By Randy York
Prep Sports Editor

It's the eighth week of the prep football season and time for a progress report on Lincoln's five teams, four of which play on the road Friday night.

Lincoln Southeast plans on staying the frontrunner in Class A district 1 point standings.

Lincoln High and Lincoln Pius X are on the rebound and haven't given up hope on qualifying for the playoffs.

Lincoln Northeast, the only Capital City team playing in town this weekend, finishes against two unbeaten teams and has hopes of climbing over the .500 mark.

Lincoln East? What are the twice defending state champions doing these days? "Listening to a hypnotist," says East coach Lee Zentic, who has the only Lincoln team incapable of finishing with a winning record.

"The Great Gingerosky" visited Spartan Practices this week in hopes of converting East's slow 2-5 start into a fast 4-5 finish.

"We asked him to hypnotize us and take two plays out of our playbook — interception right and fumble left," Zentic says. "We'll try anything."

Actually, "The Great Gingerosky" is former East defensive end John Gingery, who's helping the East coaching staff this fall.

Gingery reported to the drama department, was rigged up with a mustache, false eyelashes and a turban and promptly went to work.

"You've got to have a little fun," says Zentic, whose team plays at Papillion Friday night. "We're not down. We have not had a bad practice all year. We've been out of the money and short in a few positions, but it's never been from lack of effort or desire."

"We may have lacked some concentration and maturity along the way," he adds, "but that doesn't make working with this group any less enjoyable. We'll still have our big steak fry out at Lyle Sittler's Saturday night."

Northeast coach Bob Els faces a monumental task the next two weekends — Friday night against unbeaten Grand Island at Seacrest Field and next week at No. 1 Ralston.

"We're not even thinking about Ralston," he says. "Grand Island is a big enough worry, especially after what they did to Norfolk last week (47-0). Before that, they had pretty much relied on defense and the big play."

Els says his team's morale has been high, too, despite a 3-4 record. "They've been super," he says. "They've cried after losses, but they also know another block, another tackle, another hard run might have been the difference between 3-4 and the big play."

6-1. They feel they can compete with anyone."

Lincoln High plays at North Platte Friday night. "I've heard it's very difficult to play out there," Lincoln High coach Larry Frost says. "We were disappointed with the Ralston loss, but I think we'll hold our own."

"Our goal at the beginning of the year was to win more than our share," he says. "We got visions of some other things in our minds, but the playoffs still aren't out of reach."

"We won't have a losing season. That's for sure," adds Frost. "The thing that concerns me most about playing North Platte and East in our last two games is that we'll be going against two of the best coaches in the state in Bob Starr and Lee Zentic. We'll have to play very well."

Pius X plays Friday night at Council Bluffs St. Albert's, unbeaten in six games. "They throw the ball quite a bit," Pius coach Vince Aldrich says. "Just when we feel we've got our line problems straightened out, we face the pass."

Southeast coach Frank Solich says "we know we can't afford to do anything but win" Friday night at Millard and next week against Papillion.

Solich intends to use co-captain Will Hewitt, a standout linebacker, at offensive guard only to protect a knee injury.

If you are one of those fans who likes to play the numbers game, Friday's Nebraska freshman-Missouri junior varsity football contest would appear to be a cakewalk for the Cornhuskers.

After all, you could reason that Nebraska rolled over Kansas State's junior varsity 34-6 while Missouri lost to the Wildcats, 10-9.

So the Mizzou game should be a breather for the Husker frosh, right?

"No," head frosh coach Guy Ingles emphatically says. "It would be nice if it worked that way, but it doesn't and we all know it."

Like the Missouri varsity, the young Tigers are unpredictable. The junior Tigers ripped Kansas 34-20 in their season opener, slipped against K-State and then bombed Iowa State 40-10 last Friday.

"We've watched films of their K-State game," Ingles said. "They lost the game in the last eight seconds on a field goal after a controversial call."

"It's obvious they are a fine team with some very talented athletes."

Ingles is flying high in his first season as head coach of the Cornhusker yearlings. Replacing Jim Ross, Ingles has coached the Huskers to two consecutive victories.

In addition to the K-State victory, Nebraska rolled over UNO's junior varsity 43-0 two weeks ago.

Nebraska will be out to avenge a 22-20 loss to the Tigers which came the last time the two teams met in 1973. It was also the last time the Husker frosh have tasted defeat. The frosh have rolled to 13 straight wins since that defeat in Columbia, Mo.

World Boxing Council light heavyweight champion John Conteh of Britain and World Boxing Association light

Nebraska gymnasts to host ISU

By Ken Hambleton
Star Sports Writer

For only the third time in the history of gymnastics in the Big Eight, Iowa State will be facing the defending Big Eight champions in a dual meet Saturday night at 7:30 p.m., as the Huskers host the Cyclones in a dual meet at the NU Sports Center main arena.

The meet will open Nebraska's bid to improve its fourth place national finish last year and open the new gymnastics home for the Huskers.

"We're better than we were last year because of our overall team depth, provided by our top all-arounders and specialists," NU coach Francis Allen said referring to his team which won the Big Eight meet last year. Iowa State had won all but three conference titles.

Nebraska won the last time the two teams met for a dual in Lincoln, nipping the Cyclones 214.00-211.05, but ISU holds an 11-3 series record.

Junior all-arounder Larry Gerard will pace the team along with seniors Duane West and Gary Jeurink and freshman Mark Williams from La Grange, Ill.

Gerard, who Allen describes as one of the most exciting gymnasts in the country, captured the Big Eight all-around and high bar titles, and at the NCAA finals last spring, finished third in the high bar, fifth in the all-around and sixth in the rings, while earning all-American honors.

"The Big Eight this year is probably going to be one of the strongest gymnastics conferences in the country this year," said Allen. "And Iowa State is always one of the best teams in the nation."

Three veterans Scott Evans, Tiger Taylor and Bill Bossett along with freshman Stacy Maloney provide the Cyclone all-arounder strength, while NCAA champion Doug Woods returns on the rings and Mark Trippel specializes in the vault.

Nebraska Lineup
All-arounders — Larry Gerard, Duane West, Gary Jeurink, Mark Williams; floor exercise — Richard Heineman, Richard Brindisi; pommel horse — Mike Cosgrove, Stephen Todd; rings — Kurt Mackie, Kevin Dunkley or Stephen Lococo; vaulting — Brindisi, Heineman; parallel bars — Joseph Raymond, Heineman; high bar — Kirk Fridrich, Raymond.

Osborne cites telecast

By Ken Hambleton
Star Sports Writer

While Nebraska was putting the finishing touches on preparations for this Saturday's nationally televised game with Missouri, Husker head coach Tom Osborne commented on the television situation.

"At times, you begin to wonder who's this all for," said Osborne. "With the extra time outs, late kickoffs and all the TV interviews. But, of course, the benefits of televising a game easily outweigh the nuisances."

"Exposure is good publicity for the team, the athletic department, the school and the conference," said Osborne, referring to ABC-TV's slated broadcast. But the Nebraska head coach will be making some changes since the last time Nebraska was nationally televised in the regular season.

"We won't be allowing the sideline interviews during the game and we won't invite them into our lockerroom at halftime like some coaches have in the past," Osborne said. "Sometimes on a sideline when a kid has been banged up he might say something he doesn't mean to say. And, in the lockerroom, some people would possibly get self conscious."

He referred to a recent article on Colorado's coach Bill Mallory who closed his lockerroom to interviews following a 24-12 loss to the Huskers in Boulder.

"I don't want to pass judgment on Bill Mallory, that's something he's going to have to answer to," said Osborne. "But that kind of thing has never happened here and I believe that we should be very open with the press."

"We have one or two kids that get upset with interviews but that's a first this year," said Osborne. "For the most part the writers are judicious. Because it's possible to get a 18 or 19-year-old kid to say something he doesn't mean."

"If you lose, interviews hurt and I'd rather not talk about it and would rather go hide in a closet, but that's not the real world because people want to know what's happened," said Osborne.

Following Thursday's workout, Osborne said four injured starters are expected to play but may not start. Offensive guard Dan Schmidt has a jaw injury, while defensive end Tony Samuel had an ankle injury, fullback Dodie-Donnell, a head injury and I-back Monte Anthony a leg injury.

Because of Saturday's 2:25 p.m. kickoff, the stadium gates will be open at 12:30 p.m. instead of noon.

Adams nips Odell in defensive tilt

By Randy York
Prep Sports Editor

Adams — Whoever says defense is a forgotten word in eight-man football vocabulary should have been here Thursday night.

No. 1 ranked Adams and seventh-ranked Odell, two high scoring machines, gave fans a new appreciation for the word.

Adams registered a 16-14 win in the Homesteader Conference showdown to extend its unbeaten string to 30 games. But the Hornets faced a situation they had not faced before during that stretch — coming from two touchdowns behind.

Odell quarterback Terry Vitosh scored two touchdowns less than three minutes apart midway through the first quarter and Adams had to rely on its defense to finally get on the scoreboard.

Eugene Busboom raced in from his middle linebacker position to block a second-quarter Vitosh punt. The ball bounced into the end zone for a safety, accounting for Adams' only first-half points and producing what proved to be the winning margin.

Busboom also preserved the victory, racing in from a defensive end position to block a 32-yard Vitosh field goal attempt with 10 seconds remaining in the game.

"I looked over and we needed a defensive end so I went over there," Busboom said. "I'm just glad we came back like we did. We want a crack at the state playoffs again."

Adams closed within 14-10 with 3:05 left in the third quarter when quarterback Jeff Veerhusen scored on a six-yard option run around right end. The Hornets took control at 16:14 16:14 with 11 minutes left in fourth quarter on a four-yard Jerald Buss run. An Odell fumble on the 34 had set up the touchdown.

"We got outcoached," Adams coach Ken Cook said. "Odell was a lot more ready for us than we were for them. We were extremely lucky to win. They had a couple chances to put us away."

Desire and pride, according to Cook, were important in the Hornets' comeback.

"A lot of graduates were over there at halftime chewing some players out," Cook related. "They're out of school, but they still want to win. I think it had an impact on our players."

Cook noted that Odell had been Adams' most rugged assignment last year when the Hornets won the state championship with an 11-0 record. Adams scored a 40-34 decision at Odell last season.

"I know it will make Sidney St. Pats and Elgin mad, but Odell was the best team we played last year — bar none," Cook said. "We needed a lot of effort to catch up with them tonight."

"We tried every thing we could," Odell coach Vern Ayler said. "I don't know what else we could have tried."

Odell even tried a fake field goal attempt with 16 seconds remaining. Holder Randy Bures hit end Roger Blackwood with a 13-yard pass, carrying to the Adams 15-yard line. Busboom blocked Vitosh's field goal attempt on the next play.

Odell held a 13-11 advantage in first downs and also commanded a 254-193 advantage in total offense.

Adams, now 8-0, will finish the regular season next Wednesday night at home against Barneston. The Hornets will have equal interest in the Hampton-Rising City game the same night.

"It would sure be a shame if we don't get to go to the playoffs with an unbeaten record," Cook said, "but if that happens, there's not much anyone can do about it."

According to calculations, Adams needs either Marquette Friday night or Rising City next Wednesday night to upset Hampton to earn a repeat trip to the state playoffs.

"That may not be the only thing that could keep us out," Cook cautioned. "Even if Hampton gets upset, we're not so sure that Trumbull (another unbeaten district one representative) might not slip in there and edge us out."

Odell lost the services of halfback-safety Jim McKeever in the first quarter after he twisted a leg on a kickoff.

Odell — Vitosh 1 run (Bures kick).
Odell — Vitosh 3 run (Bures kick).
Adams — Busboom blocked punt for safety.
Adams — Veerhusen 4 run (Giltner run).
Adams — Buss 4 run (run failed).

Missouri's Tigers conjure good, bad college football dreams

Missouri's Tigers are being called a psychiatrist's dream and a prognosticator's nightmare because of a habit developed over the years of winning big games and losing sometimes when prognosticators think they should win.

Actually, the trend has been going on for so long that it shouldn't be a nightmare to pick Missouri's games. This is a week when the Tigers should play well and beat Nebraska.

I figure they'll play well, but also that Nebraska will do the same and come out on top in a real thriller, 28-27. Don't expect the Huskers to pull off the "Bummerosky" again, but don't be surprised if the two teams come up with some surprises.

Nebraska isn't the unanimous choice of all pickers. Herschel Nissenon of Associated Press says Missouri will pull the upset of the week 20-17. Fred Rothenberg of AP likes the Huskers 30-20. Mort Olshan says NU will prevail 24-20, and Jimmy The Greek makes the margin 11 points in favor of Nebraska.

"The real difference between these two comes on defense where the Huskers figure to dominate," says Olshan, the handicapper whose predictions appear every Friday in The Star. "Fultz, Pruitt & Co. are much better equipped to handle Missouri's offensive line than the Tigers' defense against Nebraska's interior."

Olshan mentions that Missouri's reputation in the big game is respected for this nationally televised contest.

Iowa State's surprising 5-1 record has been achieved through taking good care of the football. The Cyclones have had just 12 turnovers, lowest figure among Big Eight teams and they lead the conference's "giveaway-takeaway" ratio ranking with a "plus-11" record.

The only game they had more giveaways than takeaways was their only losing effort. They had a lost fumble and threw an interception while Oklahoma lost the ball just once on a turnover en route to a 24-10 triumph.

Nebraska ranks second with a plus-8 mark. The Huskers have had 13 turnovers, the bulk of them coming in two games — five last week against Kansas State (which had six) and four against Miami (which had four).

Other rankings of Big Eight teams: Oklahoma, plus 7; Oklahoma State, plus 7; Kansas, plus 1; Colorado, plus 1; Missouri, minus 4; Kansas State, minus 5.

Despite Iowa State's good turnover ratio, I like Colorado over the Cyclones 21-20 in a game at Folsom Field in Boulder.

Kansas and Oklahoma will rebound from the crippling personnel losses they had against each other last week and win on Saturday. It's Oklahoma over Oklahoma State 21-7 and Kansas over Kansas State 14-7.

Michigan and Ohio State will continue their march to a Rose

In other Big Ten games, it's Illinois over Michigan State, Wisconsin over Northwestern and Minnesota over Iowa.

Southeast: Auburn over Florida State. Florida over Tennessee. Georgia over Kentucky. Mississippi over Vanderbilt. Alabama over Louisville. Mississippi State over Southern Mississippi.

West: Brigham Young over Utah State. Colorado State over Texas-El Paso. Long Beach State over Lamar. Arizona State over New Mexico. North Texas over New Mexico State. San Diego State over Fullerton. San Jose State over Fresno. Wyoming over Utah.

I think it should be mentioned that Arizona State, which once harbored thoughts of a national championship this season, was rated in the "Bottom Ten" last week and defeated Texas-El Paso in the "crummy game of the week" for victory No. 1.

Finally, Slippery Rock is an underdog to Ashland Saturday in a home game. The Rockets, now 3-3 after a 42-6 win over California (Pa.) last week, will pull an upset.

Burke, Schultz favored to coast to state cross country titles

By Randy York
Prep Sports Editor

Kearney — Begging the sport's pardon, but the Class A state cross country meet here Friday could be about as exciting as a marathon chess match.

Although there are no guarantees in any sport, expect Omaha Burke to repeat its state championship and expect Burke's Paul Schultz to coast to another individual title.

You might even be able to eat a sandwich between the time Schultz finishes and the time his closest challenger runs through the chute.

About a month ago, things didn't look so solid for Burke. Schultz was suffering from a pulled leg muscle and Burke coach Skip Morris was taking no chances. He withheld him from competition for 10 days.

The layoff did not hurt. No runner has been able to come within 35 seconds of Schultz this season. "If he's not 100% Friday, he'll be 110%," Morris says. "He's looking so strong, it scares me."

That's bad news for such individual challengers as Lincoln East's Brian Dunnigan (No. 6 last year), Bellevue's Craig McKown and North Platte's Brad Sable.

And it's bad news for such team challengers as Lincoln Southeast, Bellevue and McCook.

"We're not scared of anyone," Morris says, "but we respect Southeast and Bellevue."

Bellevue, however, lost its No. 3 runner, Pete Rinn, this week because of mononucleosis.

Burke lost only two seniors from last year's seven-man state championship team. Competition has been so keen this season that one of the returnees is not competing on the varsity, even though he has improved.

Burke's No. 2 runner is Tom Sanduski, who finished sixth in the Metro Conference meet — the highest finish ever by a sophomore.

Lincoln Pius X is the Class B favorite. But Thunderbolt coach George O'Boyle says "I still think Minden, Imperial, York and Cozad will be right in there. Of course, Aurora and Blair won district titles, so they have to be considered, too."

Doug Morin, who finished fourth in last year's state meet, leads the Thunderbolts. "I hope Deshler's Doug Schardt, Tecumseh, Genoa and Centura offer the strongest challenges to Bayard.

The Class C race starts at 11:45 a.m. at the Kearney Country Club course. Class B is scheduled at 12:15 p.m. and Class A at 12:45 p.m.

Past team and individual champions include:

Class A

Swim, spike, gym league meets set

Since the advent of girls swimming in the Capital City, Lincoln East has yet to lose in a dual meet, but coach Dennis Vokolek is quick to point out that's all behind them now — at least for this year.

The swimming season approaches its important final weeks beginning with Friday's Trans-Nebraska Conference meet at Northeast with prelims at 9:30 a.m. and finals at 3 p.m.

The swim meet, along with Friday's T-N gymnastics meet (6 p.m. at Southeast) and Saturday's conference volleyball meet (beginning at 11 a.m. at Lincoln High) will be run for the last time under the present conference alignment with the league expanding from seven to 13 schools.

But, it's two members of the present conference providing the challenge to unbeaten East this year, defending conference champion Southeast and Grand Island.

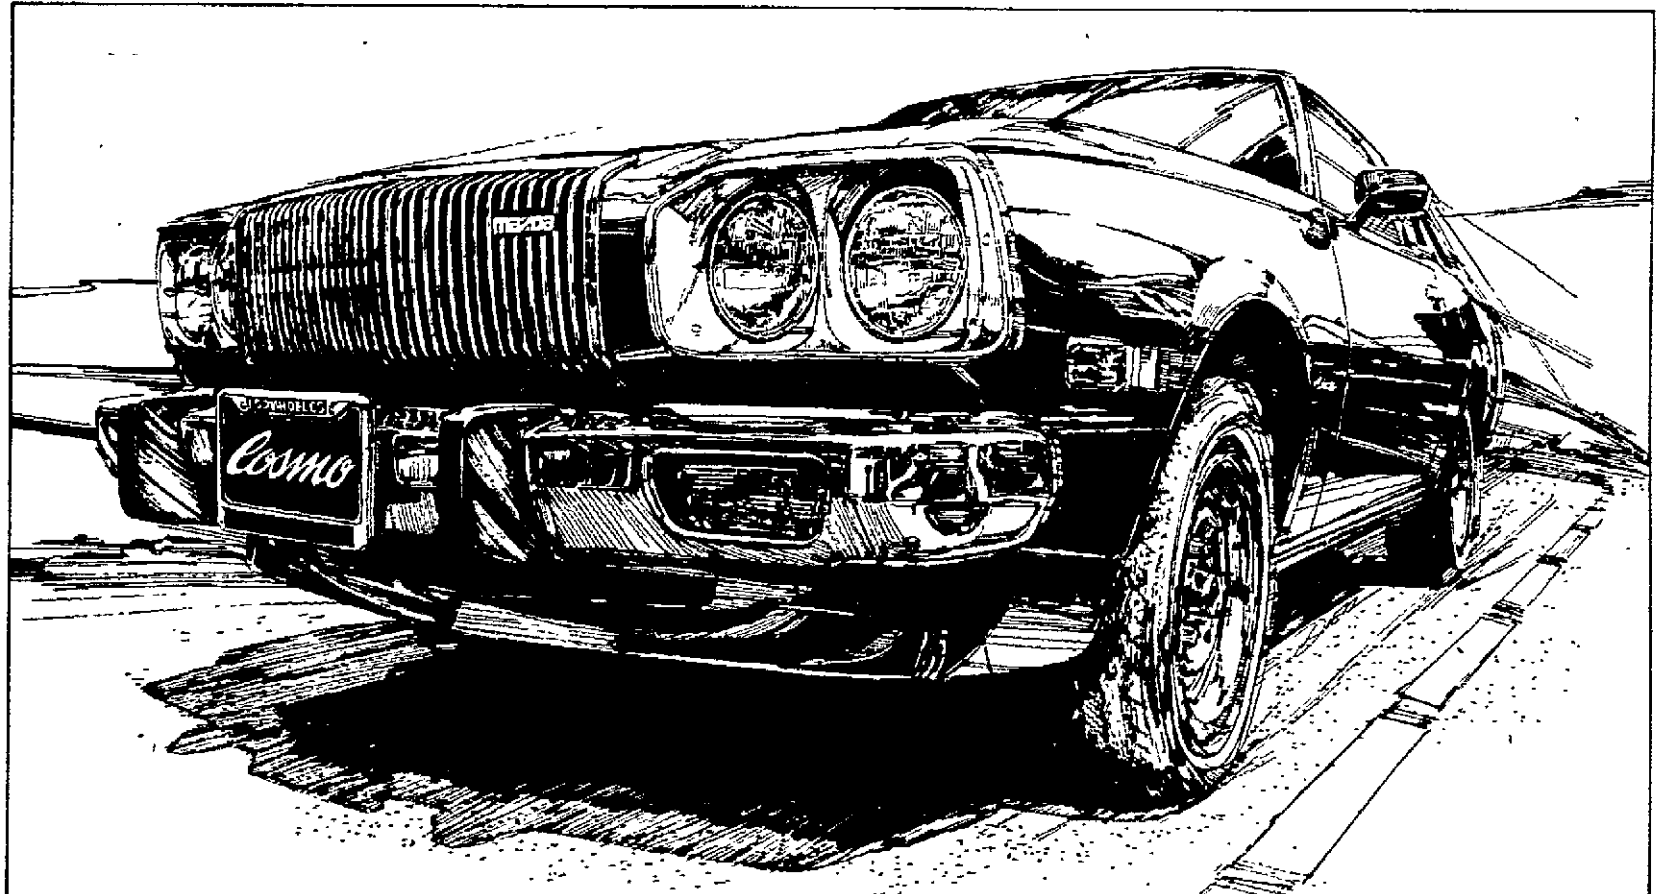

"Grand Island could very well win the conference title," Vokolek admitted. "They've been building up their program through a good age-group program."

"In fact, Grand Island could win six out of the 11 events," he added, "depending on where we swim. Kris Funk and Lincoln High swims Barb Harris." The

Omaha marijuana haul found after arrest

Omaha (UPI) — The Douglas County sheriff's office said Thursday investigation has shown an Omahan arrested by police rented a house in the King Lake area where 372 pounds of marijuana were confiscated.

Chief Deputy Sheriff Joseph Thornton said investigation was continuing and deputies have yet to assemble the complete case concerning what authorities have called an underground marijuana factory.

Authorities said the early Thursday confiscation was one of the largest marijuana hauls in the Omaha area in recent years, and an Omaha police narcotics spokesman said the marijuana in question would have had an estimated street sale value of $55,200.

Deputy County Attorney Frank Pane said he charged Douglas Grant, 26, and Ruckey G. Erwin, 20, both of Omaha, with illegal possession of amphetamines in relation to an arrest made Wednesday night. Pane said he was awaiting the sheriff's report on the marijuana case to determine whether further charges would be filed.

Grant, who Thornton said rented the house, was being held in lieu of a $5,000 cash bond, while Erwin was released on his own recognizance.

Authorities said the two were arrested when they attempted to retrieve a plastic bag containing 25 to 30 pounds of suspected marijuana from a rented camper they had returned to a South Omaha location.

Early Thursday an Omaha policeman and four sheriff's deputies went to the King Lake residence where they found about 100 pounds of marijuana drying under a heat lamp.

More marijuana was found in about 25 plastic garbage bags, authorities said, and two presses used to compact the weed were also found at the location.

A sheriff's deputy said the marijuana odor was so strong "you could smell it outside."

Two city intersections yield drugs taken in store theft

Most of the drugs stolen in the Four-Star drug burglary have been recovered at two street intersections, Asst. Police Chief Roger LaPage said Thursday.

Police found a box of drugs sitting in the street at 37th and Cleveland and another box in the intersection of 15th and Stockwell Wednesday night.

The burglary occurred sometime late Tuesday night or early Wednesday when someone broke into the Professional Building, 600 N. Cotner Blvd. The thieves knocked out the glass in one of the main doors, entered the building and then pried open the door to the Four Star drugstore located in the Professional Building.

A large variety of Schedule II drugs, mostly amphetamines and barbiturates, was taken, LaPage said.

Because many of the stolen drugs were recovered, LaPage said the total loss will be "negligible."

Dean sticks to Ford comments

New York (UPI) — John Dean Thursday stood by his claim that Gerald Ford responded to Nixon White House requests to head off an early Watergate inquiry in 1972, but said there were no indications Ford knew of any cover-up.

In an interview with United Press International, Dean, the former Nixon counsel who spent four months in jail for his participation in the cover-up, also said he thought it was still possible Ford might pardon some of the convicted Watergate conspirators, especially if he becomes a lame duck President.

In a news conference Wednesday, Ford said there was "absolutely no validity" to reports he was considering pardons for John Mitchell, H.R. Haldeman and John Ehrlichman.

In his book "Blind Ambition," Dean said that in 1972 Ford, then House minority leader, was asked by aides to former President Richard Nixon to help quash a House Banking Committee probe into the Watergate break-in.

Dean noted subsequent denials by Ford and some Nixon aides, and said, "I certainly stand on my remarks as I've put them in the book and my memory of the whole incident is very clear."

But asked whether Ford, who acknowledged playing a role in heading off the investigation, was consciously involved in White House cover-up efforts, Dean said, "I don't think he was privy to what was going on there at all."

"It was a very troublesome thing before the (1972) election and I think he was doing what a majority leader ought to do," Dean said.

Ford said Wednesday he helped rally Republican members of the committee chaired by Rep. Wright Patman, D-Texas, to head off the probe but said he did it because, "The investigation did not cover the entire Watergate matter."

The President stood by his testimony at his 1973 vice presidential confirmation hearings that "to the best of my recollection" he received no requests from any Nixon aides for his intervention.

Dean said while he was in prison he was told by "someone who was concerned about the potential of a pardon" that Ford was "sympathetic" to the possibility of pardoning Watergate conspirators.

The former White House counsel said he believed Ford "could some day — particularly if he were a lame duck President — grant pardons to the rest of the people involved" in the cover-up.

Bus shelters being studied

The Lincoln Transportation System Board agreed Thursday something should be done about building temporary downtown bus shelters.

But the board wasn't sure what, so it decided to look into the matter further.

It plans to build permanent bus shelters with money received from a federal grant. Even if that grant were approved this week, however, the shelters couldn't be constructed in time to protect bus riders from the weather this winter.

City Finance Director Jim Mallon admitted, "There's quite a demand" for some type of bus shelters.

In other business, the board adopted a "statement of concern" calling for an adequate street system to improve the level of bus service. The statement will be forwarded to officials updating the City County Comprehensive Plan.

The statement says in part, that planning for a street system should be "maintained and improved at the levels which will efficiently handle anticipated multi-modal movement of people and goods."

The board elected Roger Gormley to chair the board, succeeding Joan Bowers. Don Edwards was elected vice chairman.

LES wants old federal building bill paid

The Lincoln Electric System filed suit in Lancaster District Court Thursday seeking $11,467 in overdue steam heat bills from the Mutual Development Co. for the old federal building.

LES, a city-owned utility, claims that the company hasn't paid its heating bill for the period ending Dec. 24, 1975 on the building at 129 N. 10th St.

Head of Mutual Development Co. is John

Campbell, president of Miller & Paine. The development company sold the building to the Civic Center Corp. in December as part of a plan to convert the building into a performing arts center.

The city has moved offices to the building in the meantime.

The city signed a three-year lease with the corporation, which will lease the building back to the city for $1 a year.

The nonprofit corporation, composed primarily of Lincoln businessmen, purchased the old federal building from the Mutual Development Co. for $695,000.

In the lawsuit, LES claims that Mutual Development Co. has refused to pay the $11,467 steam heating bill. The utility wants the court to award that sum, plus interest to LES.

Judge orders accused killer committed

Ogallala (AP) — A judge has reversed the decision of the Keith County Mental Health Board and ordered the defendant in a murder case committed to a mental health institution.

Judge Hugh Stuart Thursday declared Travis Tinsley, a San Diego, Calif., man, mentally ill and dangerous. He ordered Tinsley to be incarcerated at facilities in Lincoln.

Tinsley is charged in the March slaying of Gary Olsen, an Ogallala gasoline service station attendant who was found shot to death after Tinsley had purchased gasoline with a credit card.

Two psychiatrists had concluded after interviews that Tinsley was insane at the time of the shooting. Pat Hayes, Keith County attorney, asked the mental health board to declare Tinsley mentally ill and dangerous and order his commitment. He said it would be a waste of money to prosecute Tinsley.

The board voted against commitment and Hayes appealed to Stuart.

The murder charge will not be dismissed, Hayes said, and Tinsley could be tried later.

'Never get caught holding the dagger'

London (AP) — Ambitious politicians who seek to displace party leaders got a warning from former Prime Minister Sir Harold Wilson.

He said in a new book on how Britain is governed. The man who wields the dagger never wears the crown. Hence the practiced performances of latter-day politicians in the game of musical daggers — never be left holding the dagger when the music stops.

Chambers keeps up pressure

Associated Press

Omaha Sen. Ernest Chambers sent a five-page letter to the governor Thursday, detailing reasons for Chambers' suggested firing of Adj. Gen. Francis Winner and other Nebraska National Guard personnel.

Chambers, continuing his public pressure over the "mock hanging" of a black Nebraska Army guardsman and what he calls a subsequent "coverup," cited 10 instances involving Winner and Winner's command associates.

Chambers characterized guard command inaction left Gov. J. James Exon "in the embarrassing public posture of knowing less about this incident than I." He said the governor, as National Guard commander-in-chief, should be more than a titular head of the state military.

Chambers' 10 points related either to information Exon did not receive from top guard officers or to the effects of that, leading the senator to write in point no. 9:

"Even after all the adverse publicity and various meetings and conferences with top N.G. officials, you still are in the position of receiving crucial information piecemeal from me (as I obtain it) rather than from N.G. officials. As of Oct. 18, I had information which had been withheld from you."

Chambers also noted in point no. 10 that Winner had left the state for some undisclosed mission in Europe, "when his attention to serious business on the homefront is essential."

The letter cites various military code and other legal options open to Exon for disciplining Winner and other guard officials involved in "mishandling" the May 31 incident.

It concludes:

"Gov. Exon, as honorable men, we are interested in getting to the bottom and the top of this thing aren't we?"

Brubeck cancels whites-only Durban concerts

Johannesburg, South Africa (AP) — American jazz pianist Dave Brubeck announced Thursday he has cancelled scheduled concerts in Durban because no black audiences would be allowed.

Brubeck is currently performing in Johannesburg before racially segregated audiences with certain evenings reserved for blacks and other evenings for whites.

"Fortunately, our Cape Town concerts are totally integrated," Brubeck said in a statement.

"I've met so many fantastic people here — black and white — it is inconceivable that they are not allowed to enjoy the same shows together."

Brubeck ends his South African tour on Oct. 30.

Lawford cut by hurled glass

Hollywood (UPI) — Actor Peter Lawford was cut on the leg in an accident during filming of a movie.

A scene in the movie "Fantasy Island" called for actress Carol Lynley to hurl a glass. The glass shattered and a piece struck Lawford, inflicting a deep cut on his left leg.

He was taken to UCLA Medical Center.

Selling hits glamor issues

New York (AP) — The stock market, showing little response to government figures indicating a slowing of the inflation rate, lapsed into a decline Thursday in selling aimed particularly at glamor issues.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks, which had gained 18.95 points in the last four sessions, fell back 9.97 to 944.90.

Losers outnumbered gainers by about a 5-3 margin on the New York Stock Exchange.

Criticism of the Nebraska Public Service Commission was expected in an interim study report set for unveiling Friday at a meeting of the Unicameral's Appropriations Committee.

The study, covering the commission's telephone rate-setting and service monitoring work and truck rate procedures, was conducted by staff of Lincoln Sen. Steve Fowler and members of the Legislative Fiscal Analyst's Office.

Fowler said an initial draft of the report left him with the impression that the commission works as a "passive group."

Epley safety factors said not adequately considered

Council Bluffs, Iowa (AP) — The safety factors involved in increased traffic from Omaha's Epley Airfield have not been adequately tested, according to Sen. Dick Clark.

Clark and Bluffs Mayor Dennis Anderson will conduct the meeting.

In a letter announcing the meeting, Clark said, "There is every indication that future plans for Epley Airfield call for an ever-increasing number of flights routed over the city of Attorneys for six landowners and two tenants on the site filed the suits Wednesday.

The new lawsuits allege the present condemnation proceedings undertaken by the two cities are invalid. The suits also seek temporary and permanent injunctions to block the condemnation proceedings.

Two similar lawsuits were filed earlier. The first of those resulted in a temporary injunction protecting the land of William Schuppman. The second has not yet been ruled upon.

Defendants named in the lawsuits include the appraisers, the Hall County Judge Joseph Martin, the city councils of Hastings and Grand Island, Grand Island City Manager John Carpenter, Hastings Mayor Monte Malouf and the Great Plains Power Agency, which would build the plant.

Fire truck taken; man charged

Gering (UPI) — Theodore Nelson Kills-Plenty, 21, Gering, was arraigned in Scotts Bluff County Court on charges of felony auto theft in connection with the disappearance last weekend of a truck owned by the Scottsbluff Fire Department.

Scotts Bluff County Attorney Robert Hippe Thursday said a $1,000, 10% bond was set, but had not been posted by Kills-Plenty.

In the early morning hours of Oct. 16, Torrington, Wyo., police discovered Kills-Plenty cruising through the streets in a pickup truck that belonged to the Scottsbluff Fire Department.

Scottsbluff Police Chief Jim Livingston said Torrington police arrested Kills-Plenty for driving while under the influence of alcohol. Then Torrington police contacted Scottsbluff authorities to see if they were missing the truck, Livingston said.

Meanwhile, Richard McKee, Scottsbluff assistant fire chief, looked outside his home where the white pickup truck had been parked and realized it was missing, Livingston said.

Hippe said Kills-Plenty waived extradition to Nebraska and voluntarily agreed to return to Gering, where he was being held by the Scotts Bluff County Sheriff.

A preliminary hearing date had not been set, Hippe said.

Elderly woman pays bill due since 1932

A 91-year-old Indiana woman has paid a 44-year-old bill to the University of Nebraska Medical Center Hospital in Omaha.

Mrs. Mabel Trubey of Arcadia, Ind. paid the $38 bill for 19 days of care and treatment received in 1932.

"I was unable to pay it then. You said if I was ever able, I could pay. I am now 91 years old, and I can now pay."

Hospital administrator Douglas Peters said, in a note to Mrs. Trubey: "We intend to dedicate your payment to funds available for assisting others who need medical care but have no current ability to pay for these costs."

Peter Baird, utility veteran, is dead

Services will be at 1 p.m. Monday at the Lincoln Memorial Funeral Home for Peter T. (Pete) Baird, longtime public official, who died Thursday.

Baird, 71, retired in 1970 after more than 40 years of service in the electric utility field. He was the Lincoln district manager of the Nebraska Public Power District from 1964 until his retirement. He also served the Lincoln Electric System after 1966.

Baird started with the Iowa-Nebraska Light and Power Co. and became district manager in Norfolk in 1933. In 1937, he was promoted to district superintendent. When the Consumers Public Power District bought Iowa-Nebraska Light Co. in 1941, he became the new company's district superintendent.

He was a 40-year member of the Kiwanis Club and a member of Craftsman Lodge 314 AF & AM, Starcraft chapter 307 OES, Nebraska York Rite of Free Masonry, Norfolk Seaside Temple, Mount Moriah Commandery, Elks Lodge 80, American Legion Post 3, and First Presbyterian Church.

Baird is survived by his wife, Oretta; stepson, Jack Wolff of Tacoma, Wash., and half-brother, Durwood Hedgecock of Sun City Center, Fla., and three grandchildren.

There is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 4 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 4, add 4. The result is your key number. Start at the upper-left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.
